HOOVER DATA ON BUSINESS CHEERING U. S.

Most Important Document from Economic View-point in Many Years

ADDS OPTIMISTIC TONE
Indicates Prosperity of Nation May Be Extended for Long Time

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1926, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Secretary Hoover's review of American prosperity for the year is unquestionably the most important document from an economic point of view since the war.

While general expressions and estimates of the character of America's expansion of industry have been made from time to time by economists, the official figures and data have not been assembled in such imposing fashion before. The report coincides with the general impression as to the unfortunate exceptions in the agricultural and textile industries but the description of the way American business and capital are going into the foreign field is bound to be surprising on careful examination.

LITTLE UNEMPLOYMENT

The absence of any serious unemployment and the maintenance of wages on a standard of living that is actually higher than ever before are in themselves factors of very important importance in the evolution of a nation, but the record-breaking receipts and expenditures in the total volume of business done by America is the essential indicator from which inferences are going to be drawn.

In the face of the optimistic report from Secretary Hoover naturally there will be comments as to the future. American business men have so long been unaccustomed to any extended period of extraordinary prosperity that they have felt a psychological expectation of change without having any substantial foundation for the suspicion. Mr. Hoover's report rather indicates the opposite for conditions such as he described in a single year hardly could be overcome either by foreign competitors or by domestic economic changes.

Politically the report will be significant, for it will provide Republicans with ammunition for their argument to the voters of the effectiveness of the present administration. It will mean more in 1928, however, than today for if another such report can be issued two years hence the two together will probably furnish all the issues that the republicans will require on which to base their appeal.

The Democrats are counting on the turn in the agricultural industry to bring them new alliances and electoral votes.

RECALL DIVORCE BY EPISCOPALIANS

Church Protesting Rota Action Annulled Similar Marriage, Newspaper Claims

New York—(AP)—In connection with discussion of the annulment by a Roman Catholic tribunal of the Episcopal marriage of Mariborough Vanderbilt and the New York Times Tuesday recalls that in 1891 four Episcopalians bishops annulled a marriage under similar circumstances. Bishop William T. Manning of the Episcopal diocese of New York, criticized the Catholic annulment as an invasion of American civil rights and an affront to his church. The annulment of 1891 dissolved the marriage, as far as the church was concerned, of Anne E. Jenks, a Brooklyn judge to Maude E. Littlejohn, daughter of Bishop A. N. Littlejohn who officiated at the wedding of the duke of Marlborough and Consuelo Vanderbilt in 1905.

After nearly 13 years of married life, Mrs. Jenks obtained a divorce in Newport, R. I., charging abandonment and non-support, which were not grounds for divorce in New York nor recognized by the Episcopal church. The next year Bishop Littlejohn called a meeting of four bishops who issued a decree declaring the marriage null and void. The grounds were not disclosed.

AMERICAN SCULPTOR IS DEAD IN EAST AFRICA

Nairobi, British East Africa—(AP)—Carl Akeley, American explorer, sculptor and inventor died Nov. 17 in the Belgian Congo, where he had been collecting specimens for the American Museum of Natural History.

PAROLED WAUPACA MURDERER CLAIMS PRISON AS HOME

Milwaukee—(AP)—Overwhelmed by loneliness, Michael J. Harris, 70, paroled 10 years ago from Waupun where he was serving a life sentence for murder, voluntarily returned to the prison Tuesday and asked that he be permanently confined there for the remainder of his life.

He was admitted by Warden Oscar Lee, after an ineffectual attempt had been made by the prison authorities to dissuade the old man from relinquishing his place in society he has held since being paroled in 1916.

Harris was obdurate in his determination to voluntarily return to the prison within whose walls he spent more than 32 years of his life for slaying Frederick Verkey of Waupaca in a quarrel. Parole Agent Joseph M. Siebel, whom Warden Lee sent to talk to the old man and urge him to remain at his job in Milwaukee, was unable to shake Harris' determination.

"I was almost raised in Waupun penitentiary," he told Mr. Siebel. "I feel at home here. I have never really felt at home on the outside. I haven't any friends to speak of—I know a lot of old timers in prison. And I am getting old. I want to go back."

MAY REQUEST MISTRIAL IN HALL MURDER

Simpson May Plead Jury Prejudice as Result of Charges in Letter

Courthouse, Somerville, N. J.—(AP)—Introduced by the state to testify as to the reputation of Mrs. Jane Gibson for truth and veracity, a witness created a mild sensation in court during the trial of the Hall-Mills case Tuesday by saying that it was "not so good."

Dr. J. H. Cooper of Milstone, furnished the surprising testimony from a state's witness.

The prosecutor asked Dr. Cooper the stereotyped question: "What is her reputation for truth and veracity, good or bad?"

The crowd sat up when Dr. Cooper chirped: "Not so good."

Somerville—(AP)—It was the announced intention of Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson to request a mistrial in the Hall-Mills murder case at the conclusion of the state's rebuttal testimony Tuesday. Charges have been made that the jury is prejudiced.

A letter from Gilbert A. Vandorn, owner of the hotel where the jurors are quartered, and 12 affidavits which Simpson claims to have obtained in support of the letter, form the basis of the charge.

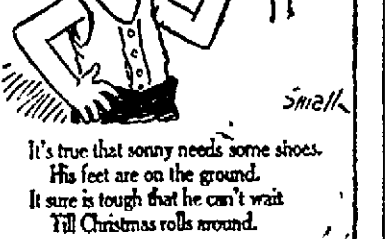

Vandorn, who claims to have overheard conversations of the jurors, says in his letter:

"Several of the jurors are openly hostile to the state, and have been since the day the trial started. I have heard Juror 'A' say in my presence 'Simpson is a lying—' and I wouldn't believe a word he says. This same juror told me that Mrs. Gibson is a lying—and I would not believe her on oath. These remarks were made both before and after Mrs. Gibson testified."

OBJECT TO SIMPSON
Vandorn also declares that several of the jurors have objected to Simpson's importation into Somerset from Hudson-con to conduct the state's case, that they "intend to show up Hudson-con before they get through, that they cannot come here and run things."

The 12 affidavits by detectives for the prosecution charge that some of the jurors have slept during the trial and that others have announced their minds were made up before hearing testimony.

Simpson's threat of mistrial took the defense counsel by surprise, since they expected a quick acquittal.

DAUGHERTY TESTIFIES IN FALL TRIAL

MAY DECREASE U. S. NAVY AT NEXT SESSION

Expect Fight on Question Soon After Congress Convenes in December

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The confused chorus of pre-session talk at the capitol is rising in volume as the last assembly of the sixty-ninth congress approaches. Not only are the farm relief advocates crying their wares and Republican leaders discussing, in moderate tones of reconciliation, the status of insurgent members of their party, but the Democrats have projected a motif of their own which dwells on tax and tariff reduction, the plight of agriculture and corruption in primaries.

Behind all of this medley can be heard the efforts of a number of committees, which are busily striking their anvils to fashion a supply of bills that will give the house plenty to debate. But the moment it meets. Although the committee anvils are placed behind closed doors, it is possible now and then to detect the purport of their part in the general chorus. For instance the house appropriations committee in discussing the advisability of a reduction in the navy's enlisted personnel.

A number of arguments have been brought into the oral conflict. It has been recalled that the present enlisted strength is slightly below that authorized two winters ago and that a reduction this year would be the second cut within a two year period.

DEMOCRATIC PROGRAM
The Democratic program has been announced by the party's floor leader in the senate, Robinson of Arkansas. It contemplates a liberal policy for relief of agriculture, permanent reduction of taxes and tariff rates rather than enactment of the administration's tax credit proposal, and "decisive action for the protection of the senate against the impeachment of its honor and the impairment of its influence" through corruption in primaries.

Negotiations looking to restoration to insurgent-republicans of committee positions and other party privileges taken away from them because of their support of the La Follette Presidential ticket in 1924 are proceeding more rapidly in the Senate than in the house.

U. W. TAKES HONORS AT LIVESTOCK SHOW

Badger School Wins Several Championships at International in Chicago

Chicago—(AP)—Herman Trelle, East River, Alberta, won the wheat sweepstakes and the title of "wheat king of North America" for Canada Monday. The University of Wisconsin was the only exhibitor to give the Dominion exhibitor a race.

The winning entries shown by the Wisconsin school in the fat sheep show division captured the grand championship vether contest.

Theodore Diekhoff's earload lot cattle won the county group championship. Diekhoff is from Junction, Wis.

A University of Wisconsin Yorkshire won the championship barrow contest with the University of Minnesota setting the record in honors in that class with a Yorkshire.

The pen of three Yorkshire barrows also entered by the University of Wisconsin, was adjudged the championship pen and the University of Minnesota again took reserve honors.

STRANGLER ADDS THIRD VICTIM ON WEST COAST

Portland, Ore.—(AP)—Mrs. Blanche Myers, 45, was found strangled to death in her home here late Monday night. A handkerchief was about her neck and the room here evidence of a terrific struggle. This is the third recent case in which a woman has been strangled to death here in the last few weeks, and the eighth case of its kind on the Pacific coast in about seven months. Police from here to central California are searching for a "dark stranger" whom they believe is responsible for the killings.

In each case the dead body was found in a room which had advertised room for rent in their homes. The stranger in each case has gained entrance to their homes under the pretext of wishing to rent a room.

HOLD FORMER FIREMAN AS BANK BANDIT

Paul Crouch Taken into Custody as Daylight Robber at Greenville

Paul Crouch, 705 N. Clark-st., a former city fireman, will be formally charged with the daylight holdup of the Greenville State Bank on Nov. 7, 1925, it was announced by Police Chief George T. Prim on Tuesday. Mr. Crouch was arrested by officers John Dural and Albert Deigen late Monday, the chief said.

According to Chief Prim the man has been positively identified by Otto Schmidt, cashier of the bank, who was called in to Appleton for that purpose. The car, said to have been used by the lone bandit in making his getaway has also been seized and is being held by the police.

The machine, it was stated, is the one that Crouch is alleged to have left Greenville in the day of the alleged robbery.

"For several weeks," Chief Prim declared, "the department has had Crouch under surveillance and as he was wanted on a charge of passing bad checks he was taken into custody Monday night."

Crouch, according to present intentions, is to be arraigned before Municipal Judge Theodore Berg on Wednesday morning.

The bandit who robbed the Greenville bank escaped with about $500 after locking the cashier and his assistant, Miss Leona Fisch, in the bank vault. Several shots were fired at him but he escaped. The bandit is alleged to have been driving a Buick automobile with a Wisconsin license number. He was described as a man of about 35 years, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing about 135 pounds. He had blue eyes and was light complexioned. The bandit used a revolver to cow the cashier and his assistant.

KENTUCKY CO-OP SELLS BIG TOBACCO SHIPMENT

Lexington, Ky.—(AP)—The Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative association said Monday nearly twelve million pounds of tobacco of the 1925, 1924 and 1925 crops. The purchasers were the International Planters corporation, which bought 8,500,000 pounds; the American Tobacco company, which took 2,250,000 pounds; having already bought 28,000,000 pounds last month; the Universal Leaf Tobacco company, which purchased 800,000 pounds, and the Kentucky Re-Drying company, which bought 400,000 pounds.

Jastrow Attacks Doyle Claims on Spiritualism

Worcester, Mass.—(AP)—Rival claims for spiritualism, viewed from a scientific standpoint, presented at the first session of Clark university's symposium of psychical research, vary from the prediction of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle that it will reunite science and religion, of the fact that ascertainment of Prof. Joseph Jastrow that it is absurd and untenable.

Professor Jastrow, psychologist of the University of Wisconsin, opened the symposium Monday night in an address, attacking the case for spiritualism as presented in a letter read from Sir Arthur, author and exponent of spiritualism.

WAS NOT TOLD OF OIL LEASES, HE MAINTAINS

Matter Was Not Brought to Attention of Attorney General's Staff

Washington—(AP)—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States and himself under indictment on a conspiracy charge, was called to the witness stand Tuesday in the Fall Doherty oil case.

The former cabinet officer made his appearance unexpectedly to lend spice to the humdrum tenor of more or less technical testimony which the prosecution had been presenting to strengthen its claim that former Secretary Fall of the interior department, and Edward L. Doherty, wealthy oil operator, had entered into a conspiracy in connection with the naval oil leases.

Daugherty, with Thomas W. Miller, former allied property custodian, was tried in New York recently in a case involving the disposal of seized allied property, the case resulting in a mistrial. The oil prosecution Tuesday called him for questioning concerning the part taken by the department of justice in connection with the Elk Hills naval oil reserves and the Pearl Harbor naval base. He said he never had been asked for an opinion on the legality of the proposed contracts and leases.

AS A MATTER OF FACT, Daugherty said he did not know such leases and contracts ever had come to the department of justice in any way. He added that he did not know Doherty.

On cross-examination the former attorney general said that each governmental department had its own legal staff and that it was customary to present legal questions to the attorney general only when the departmental staff were in doubt as to the law.

The government objects to Daugherty's answering a general question as to the usual custom in legal procedure within the departments. The court overruled the objection and the witness told of the process through which departmental questions came to the attorney general when they did. He said every opinion he ever had rendered as attorney general was a matter of record in the department of justice, bearing his own signature. He never had been asked for a "curbside" opinion on the oil leasing negotiations in a cabinet meeting, he said.

Daugherty's cross examination was punctuated with frequent and vigorous objections from the prosecution table. All general attempts to penetrate cabinet discussions were overruled.

HOOVER CALLS MEET TO DISCUSS CANAL

May Debate Advisability of Constructing Waterway Entirely in U. S.

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Secretary Hoover, as chairman of the American section of the international commission on the Great Lakes ship canal project, has called a meeting of the section on Dec. 10, to go over the report of the engineers on the St. Lawrence waterway, which was made public last week. It is likely that the American section, will have a report to make upon the engineers' findings.

The chief point of importance, Mr. Hoover said Tuesday, is in the fact that a comparison between the costs and advantages of constructing a ship way into the Great Lakes via the St. Lawrence, or through New York state, entirely on the American side, will soon be available. The findings as to the practicability and cost are likely to be assembled he said in time for submission to congress at the coming session.

GO-OPS NOT CURE-ALLS FOR PROBLEMS OF FARM

Chicago—(AP)—Cooperative organization in farm marketing is a great step forward but it is not a cure-all for the farmer's problems, Chris L. Christensen, chief of the new Federal Division of Cooperative Marketing, told a joint session of state marketing officials and the National Association of Commerce secretaries and Department of Agriculture Tuesday. Organization in itself does not solve the marketing problem, but simply creates machinery to do so and its success, he said, depends largely on how intelligently it is applied and directed.

FARM HOME BURNED SHORTLY AFTER AUCTION

Fond du Lac—(AP)—Within a few hours after all of the machinery and other equipment had been sold at a public auction fire of mysterious origin Monday night destroyed the F. H. Meekin farm home, three miles east of here, causing damage estimated at $15,000. The farm is owned by M. M. Mitchell and Charles H. Richards, Brush, Colo., who secured the property on a mortgage. The home was built in 1892 and was one of the finest farm residences in the county.

Fail To Find Trace Of Missing Girl And Youth

Prairie du Chien—(AP)—The whereabouts of Clara Olson, 22, and her 15-year-old admirer, Erdman Olson, was as much a mystery Tuesday as when they were last seen more than two months ago, despite efforts of county officers and private detectives. Sheriff Harry W. Sherwood of Crawford-couty sought the youth on a warrant charging murder of his sweetheart, issued by Justice C. H. Speck on a complaint made Nov. 26 by the father of the missing girl.

No organized search has been started by citizens of the Kickapoo valley but Sheriff Sherwood and Detective John Sullivan of Milwaukee, employed by Chris Olson, father of Clara, hoped some clues would be developed by the $200 reward posted Tuesday. Chris Olson offered the reward for information leading to the arrest of Erdman.

Justice Speck told the Associated Press Tuesday that he had issued the warrant on "information and belief" at the request of the girl's father who swore in his complaint that "Erdman Olson on Sept. 10, 1926 in Crawford-couty feloniously and with malice aforethought did kill Clara Olson."

Issuance of the murder warrant for the youth, former student at Gale college, although the body of the girl had not been found nor had any evidence of a crime having been committed had been brought to light by the attempts of authorities to pierce the mystery surrounding the disappearance of the two young people, was regarded as unsound.

A hint of suicide was contained in the letter Erdman wrote to his parents and another which he sent to Clara's father.

GLASHEEN, BOEHM FREED BY BLAINE

Governor Grants Pardons to Two Men Convicted in Court Here

Two men sentenced in Municipal court here were granted pardons by Gov. John J. Blaine, it was announced Tuesday.

Anton Boehm, who was sentenced to one year in prison on Oct. 26, 1925 in Outagamie-circuit court for failing to stop after his automobile caused an injury was one of the men and the other was Michael Glasheen, 31, a farmer, convicted of appropriating school funds of the town of Buchanan to his own use.

Boehm was arrested by police on July 21, 1925, charged with running down Ben Beschta, S. Mason-st., and failing to stop to render aid. Vincent Forster was in the automobile with Boehm at the time. The accident occurred at E. North and N. Morrison-sts. just after Beschta had alighted from a street car.

SUES FOR DAMAGES
Beschta sued Boehm for damages and settlement of about $2,500 was agreed upon and later Boehm was tried for failing to stop after the accident. He was found guilty and sentenced to serve a year in state prison but an appeal was taken to the Supreme court and Governor Blaine was asked for a pardon. The governor would not consider the case while it was pending in Supreme court but after the high court had affirmed the sentence he granted Boehm a reprieve until he could pass on the pardon application. As a result Boehm has been at liberty on bond and has not served a day in prison. The governor in granting the pardon, ordered Boehm to pay a fine of $250. The governor said Tuesday.

CHARGE LEVY FOR HIGHWAYS IS UNLAWFUL

Correct Tax Levy at Once on City Will Act, Warning to Board

COUNCIL HIRES LAWYER

A. H. Krugmeier Engaged as Special Counsel as Law-suit Threatens

BULLETIN

Preliminary steps were taken Tuesday morning by County Clerk John E. Hantschel to call a special meeting of the county board of supervisors to rectify mistakes made in passing highway resolutions empowering the county to spend approximately $210,000 for road work during 1927. A call must be signed by the majority of board members and at least a week will elapse before the county governing body can go into session.

Following a week of concentrated investigation and deliberation, the common council Monday evening instituted official action against Outagamie-c to determine the validity of certain taxes levied by the county board of supervisors at its November session.

A resolution introduced by Alderman Mark Carlin providing that a notice be served upon the county clerk informing him that unless certain specified taxes, alleged by the council to be illegal, are corrected by the county, the city will take such steps as it believes necessary to protect the tax payers, was unanimously adopted. The notice was served on John E. Hantschel, county clerk, Tuesday.

The council also engaged Albert H. Krugmeier as its attorney to represent the city in the tax issue and authorized him to take such action as he deems necessary. Mr. Krugmeier had last week to review the matter and present an opinion as to the legality of the tax levies in question.

SAYS THEY'RE ILLEGAL
His opinion, presented orally Monday evening, was that the county clerk illegal, and he advised the council to start legal proceedings against the county.

The taxes for which the validity is to be tested are:

A retirement of $68,000 on the second issue of a $272,000 road bond issue.

A general highway tax of $210,000.

A county town aid road tax of $29,250.

The resolution adopted by the council reads:

"Resolved: That the following notice be served upon the clerk of Outagamie-c:

"You are hereby notified that certain taxes levied by the county board of Outagamie-c at their November meeting are illegal, to wit:

"Sixty-eight thousand dollar second issue of $272,000 bond issue.

"A $210,945.40 highway tax, taxes as a general highway tax, and

"A $29,250 tax, known as county town aid road tax.

"That the above specified taxes are illegal and you are hereby notified

COLDEST WEATHER OF SEASON IS ON WAY

Chicago—(AP)—A day away in the northwest, the coldest weather of the season is threatening the middle-west with temperatures down to 15 above zero by Wednesday night.

The fall in temperature will assume the proportions of a cold wave in most of the Great Lakes region and the northern portion of the middle-west," said Tuesday's weather forecast. Northwest storm warnings were ordered displayed on three of the Great Lakes, Lake Superior, and the northern portions of Lakes Michigan and Huron. The approach of the cold weather is a result of storm which originated several days ago over the Pacific coast.

MRS. FIJI LEIDY TO MARRY YOUNG BROKER

Philadelphia, Pa.—(AP)—Mrs. Fiji Leidy, heiress, who eloped in 1920 eloped with a 20-year-old University of Pennsylvania freshman, and who divorced him, is to be married Thursday to Milton Holdren, a young broker of this city.

Reports that Mrs. Leidy and Holdren were engaged have been current since last April, but were regularly denied by both principals. Now they have been confirmed by friends. The hour and the place of the ceremony have not been disclosed.

Mrs. Leidy's first husband was Carter Randolph Leidy, son of a socially prominent Philadelphia family. They had one child.

TAX TONGLE PUT UP TO ATTORNEY GENERAL OF STATE

Lonsdorf and Brusewitz Take Copies of Resolution to Madison

Highway Commissioner A. G. Brusewitz and probably District Attorney John A. Lonsdorf expected to leave for Madison Tuesday with copies of every highway resolution passed at the fall sessions of the county board to lay before the attorney general for opinion as to the legality of the appropriations. The fight precipitated by the city of Appleton in protesting that the county exceeded its powers in passing appropriations has left a tangled web of every highway resolution which will have to be solved by the highest legal office in the state, it was declared.

A special meeting of the county board will probably be held to repeal those appropriations in excess of the 2-mill tax allowed under the statutes, it was indicated.

STATE BOARD HEARS KABAT PARDON PLEA

Appleton Attorney Opposes Clemency for Desperate Slayer

Attorney Thomas H. Ryan is in Waupun Tuesday to oppose a plea for a pardon by Vernon E. Kabat, serving a life sentence for the murder of Michael McCarthy, near Kaukauna in 1906. Kabat's application was heard by the state board of control.

Kabat murdered McCarthy and then burned the body, according to testimony at the trial here. The murderer made his escape from the penitentiary at Waupun after serving 10 years but was recaptured about two years later in a little Minnesota town and returned to prison.

Last March Kabat applied to the governor for a pardon but his plea was rejected. At that time numerous Outagamie-co persons filed protests with Gov. Blaine. They objected to his pardon on the grounds that he was too desperate a character to be allowed freedom in the community, as feared because he is said to have threatened some of his accusers.

AGAIN POSTPONE TRIAL OF PROHIBITION RAIDER

The case of a federal prohibition enforcement officer, arrested under the name of James H. Graham, on a charge of assault while armed, was postponed for two weeks when brought before Municipal Judge Theodore Berg on Monday. Several weeks ago, Graham, or Nelson which is said to be the man's correct name, raided a place in Appleton while armed, according to the complaint. An unnecessary display of force was used, it was stated. It is considered probable that the department of justice will assume jurisdiction in the matter, Judge Berg said.

THOUSANDS OF HOLIDAY TREES PASS THRU HERE

Owing to the early arrival of snow, many buyers from larger cities in the southern part of the state are already transporting Christmas trees for use in southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois. Several carloads of Christmas trees passed through Appleton by rail Monday and numerous large transportation trucks loaded with trees pass through the city daily. Many tourists passing through Appleton for the past two months had trees tied to the sides of their automobiles. Trees for decorating local stores are arriving here daily but trees for home use will probably not start arriving here for about 10 days.

WIRE TICKS

New York—(P)—Senator Copeland, a physician, thinks that 4 per cent beer would not be intoxicating. He is assembling the latest medical data on the matter with the idea of introducing a bill in congress, because he views the heavy majority in the recent state prohibition referendum as a mandate to him. And so far as his close affiliation with the Methodist Episcopal church is concerned, he says he is willing to burn all his bridges behind him if necessary in this matter.

Washington, D. C.—Objection to the appointment of Senator Wadsworth of New York, defeated wet to any government position, is expressed in a resolution adopted by the United Committee for Prohibition Enforcement, Fort Worth, Texas.

CITY THREATENS TO SUE COUNTY

that the city of Appleton through its mayor and common council will take such steps as are necessary to force the taxpayers of the city of Appleton unless said tax levy is immediately corrected.

WAIT ON BOARD

The city's next step depends upon the county board. If the board calls a special session and carries out instructions listed in the notice, legal proceedings may stop there. If the board fails to take such action, the city will without doubt inaugurate the next move.

The exact nature of that move will of course be determined by Mr. Krugmeier. It is possible that a writ of mandamus compelling the county board to correct the alleged irregularities will be served either on the county clerk or on the chairman of the county board. Should this procedure be defeated, final settlement still could be blocked by the city by serving an injunction upon Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer, restraining him from paying the city's share of the county-state tax to the county treasurer.

In presenting his opinion on the issue Attorney Krugmeier outlined the history of the better roads movement in the county. He recalled the first campaign conducted a number of years ago to bond the county for $700,000 to finance a road improvement program, and charged that the campaign succeeded by representing to the taxpayers that they would not be burdened by any additional taxes.

SECOND BOND DEFEATED

"All of this money was soon exhausted, and another campaign was launched to bond the county for an additional $1,500,000," he said. "When the proposal came to a vote, it was carried into the county, only the vote of the city of Appleton defeating it."

Since that time, county taxes have been increasing steadily, reaching the peak of $880,606.86 in 1926, he pointed out. He compared this figure with the county tax levy of $381,769.32 in 1916, ten years ago, stating that the increase was due chiefly to highly to highway expenditures.

Attorney Krugmeier cited numerous cases in which the legality of tax levies was questioned and referred to innumerable sections of the statutes, in explaining why he believed three provisions in the county tax levy are illegal.

The tax of $68,000 for retirement of the second issue of the $272,000 road bond issue is illegal because the time of retiring the issue has not yet arrived, he told the council. The county board already has admitted its error in fixing this sum in the tax levy, and is now taking steps to rectify the error.

$210,000 TAX ILLEGAL

The error came about through failure of the board to recall an amendment it had made to a resolution by which it set payment of principal of one of two $272,000 road bond issues ahead four years. Retirement of the other issue of similar value, and interest on both issues, must be provided for annually, however.

The general highway tax of $210,945 is illegal, it is contended, because a 2-mill tax for highway purposes also was levied, and with the exception of certain specified special taxes for highway purposes, no other tax than a 2-mill tax can be levied. This opinion was voiced Monday afternoon by the attorney general over long distance telephone, according to Mr. Krugmeier.

As the county did not fix the 2-mill tax at the limit permitted by the statutes, it is possible that this tax now be increased to the limit it was pointed out. Even if this course should be followed, the reduction in the county tax for highway purposes would be appreciable. In such instance, the board also would be faced with the question of whether the limit is based on the assessed valuation or the equalized valuation of the county, it was said.

Doubt over the legality of the county town aid road tax was expressed for two reasons: First, the possibility that this provision in the statute has been repealed; second, the question of whether this tax should not include the 2-mill tax. These points will be definitely established shortly, it is expected.

CONDEMNED BOARD

Attorney Krugmeier was vociferous in his denunciation of the county boards of the past ten years or so for permitting "such huge expenditures for highway purposes."

"If this program continues, the limit will soon be reached, and then what?" he asked.

If Appleton is successful in proving the irregularity of the contested tax levies, it will result in a saving to the

Christmas Seals Have Saved Hundreds Of Lives

Christmas seals are being sent to individuals and business houses this week by the local committee for the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. Appleton Women's club will have charge of the sale in Appleton this year as in the past and the entire campaign will be conducted through the club as school children and other individuals will not make personal canvasses. Mrs. William Nemacheck, health chairman at the club, will be chairman of the drive.

Half of the money collected from the sale of the seal will remain in Appleton to be used for the work of fighting tuberculosis in this community. The remainder will be sent to the association for its work in the same cause.

The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association was organized in 1903 for the purpose of teaching people how to prevent and cure the disease. In that year 109 of every 100,000 persons in the state died from the effects of tuberculosis. In 1925, 60 of every 100,000 died of the disease, the reports of the association showed.

16,000 CASES

Although tuberculosis as a cause of death is decreasing there are still 16,000 active cases in the state and it is said to kill more people between the ages of 20 and 40 than heart disease, cancer, pneumonia, and cerebral hemorrhage, the four leading causes of death, combined, it is said. More than 75 per cent of those who died in the state in 1925 were under 50 years, the reports continued.

Free chest clinics are conducted by the association in Wisconsin for the purpose of locating unknown and unsuspected cases before it is too late to cure them. In 1925, 15,703 persons were examined at 332 clinics held in 283 communities, and 2,060 cases of tuberculosis were found. There are 18 public sanatoria in Wisconsin with city of from $50,000 to $90,000, it is estimated.

Should this saving be realized, a number of improvement measures which the council had intended to carry out next year but was forced to pass if the tax rate was to be kept down to 3 per cent, will be made possible, according to Mayor Albert C. Rule.

OTHER LEVIES ILLEGAL?

The water department asked for $65,000 for next year and was granted approximately only $18,000 in the city's budget. The department has an expansion program at the filtration plant and without the necessary funds its plans will be blocked, it is pointed out.

Possibility of securing an even larger saving then mentioned above was suggested Monday evening, as highway appropriations the last one or two years probably have been illegal, it was shown by several aldermen. Whether action will be instituted to recover these amounts has not been decided.

The Coal You Save

ALDERMEN ARE HOPING MARK SHOOT'S BUCK

Alderman Mark Catlin left for northern Wisconsin Monday evening on his annual quest for deer, and the well wishes of the common council went with him.

If the representative of the First ward returns with a deer, the council is assured of a venison dinner. Each warding himself from the council chambers Monday evening where the council was in special session, Alderman Catlin made known the necessity for his early departure, but assured his brother councilmen that each should prepare himself for a feast over the buck he would bring back with him.

Whether the council's Izaak Walton representative knows where the deer are numerous or whether he is over confident of his ability to bag his quest, no one stopped to ask. Suffice it to say that all the aldermen have their mouths set for a venison dinner. If the alderman comes back empty handed, well—then the council will at least have a good story to listen to.

HIGHWAY COMMITTEE DEFERS ELECTION

Engrossed with tax problems the county highway committee failed to elect a chairman for the new board at the meeting Monday. Indications were Tuesday that the old committee will function until the legality of its operations has been passed upon by the attorney general.

TIME ITSELF STOPS FOR TETRAZZINI'S MUSIC, SHE SAYS

That's Her Explanation of Why She Married Man Young Enough to Be Son

BY ALICE ROHE
Rome—Music hath charms not only to soothe the savage breast but to kindle love in the most sophisticated heart.

Love levels all ranks. Music levels time itself.

Musical Ah signora, that's the explanation of how Madame Luisa Tetrazzini, at the age of 55, met and married a student young enough to be her son.

MELODY STARTED IT
Signor Pietro Vernati, 30, handsome, svelt, very dapper, says that he not only agrees with the estimate of the powers of music but that he is willing to give even greater testimony as to its spell which brought romance into the life of the great coloratura soprano.

Signor Vernati fell in love with Tetrazzini's voice. One morning he heard a glorious outburst of melody flooding the garden of his home in the Via Gaeta, Rome. Every owner of a phonograph record who has had the opportunity of hearing Tetrazzini will in person know just what that means.

At any rate the young and handsome Vernati made inquiries and discovered that the great Tetrazzini had an apartment in the same building at his own. He succeeded in expressing his great love for this beautiful voice—and later for the owner of the voice. So eloquently did he plead, that the diva herself capitulated to romance.

The difference of years—what does that matter? asks Madame Tetrazzini-Vernati.

And be it known that Italy, the land of music, is a peculiarly suitable setting for this apotheosis of music as the greatest of all love potions.

Tetrazzini, covered with jewels estimated by the insurance appraisers as over $200,000, sang for her wedding guests. On her head was a diamond tiara said to have been the gift of the czar of Russia.

SINGS EVERY DAY
Furthermore she sings every day of her honeymoon for her husband. And with the exuberance of a youth which belies her birth certificate—she says her honeymoon will be a long one. She is going to continue it in America this winter on a concert tour. And of course her new husband will accompany her.

Tetrazzini makes it clear that she is not bothered with the problem, which besets so many American women: Can a woman have a career and a husband at the same time? She has her career and will continue it—and she now has a husband and will continue to keep him.

A woman—whether she is a celebrity or not—has a right to love and marriage, says the famous diva. In her youth, a career suffices. But as she gets older, she longs for the companionship of a husband.

So she has one, and all Italy is rejoicing.

Old Timer Compares Price Of "Wet Goods" Then, Now

The figures of speech used are admittedly figurative, the figures used mathematically are meticulously accurate and indicative of—nothing in particular.

"I remember," mused an old timer, "back to the day before Thanksgiving in 1856, when down in Marengo, that's down in Iowa-co, Ia., you could buy it wholesale, by the gallon for 60 cents, 32 cents, 32, 32, $3.75 and $2.50, and what's more I've got an old price list to prove it."

Producing the mottled list the following was revealed:

"Rye whiskey—50 cents.
"Corn whiskey—32 cents.
"Bourbon whiskey—$2.00.
"Brandy whiskey—$3.75.
"Holland gin—$2.50."

A notation declared that the above table of figures represented current prices on gallon lots of "merchandise guaranteed" and was taken from the official report of an inspector for that district for November of the halcyon year of 1856.

Apparently the cost of high living has advanced slightly within the past three-quarters of a century, according to present quotations.

From the mythical county which is always just beyond the dividing line of whatever county you may live in the following current—wholesale—prices were adduced, for Thanksgiving whistle lubricant, as follows:

Rye whiskey—try and get it.
Corn whiskey, or something remotely resembling it, from $2.50 to $4 a gallon.
Bourbon, from $4 a gallon at your drugstore, up to what you're willing to pay a bootlegger.
Port wine, or powerful substitutes, $4 a gallon and skyward.
Brandy, 50 to France.
Holland gin, non-existent, but the following current—just as good boys will supply you at from $4 to $18 a gallon, and suit it for you.

EDUCATORS WILL MEET IN CITY ON THURSDAY, DEC. 9

Meeting Will Be Held in Office of City Superintendent of Schools

Secondary education supervisors of the Outagamie and Winnebago counties have been invited to attend a conference sponsored by the state superintendent of schools on Dec. 9, at the offices of the city superintendent in Appleton. The all-day session will be conducted by one of the state high school supervisors, probably J. T. Giles, who inspected the Appleton high schools last winter.

High school principals, both junior and senior, county and city superintendents and supervisors, and others engaged in training or supervising high school teachers have been asked to attend the meetings. Letters have been sent by John Callahan, state superintendent, to school boards in the counties urging them to permit their principals and superintendents to be present.

Representatives probably will be present from New London, Hortonville, Black Creek, Seymour, Little Chute, Kaukauna, Kimberly, Neenah, Menasha, Oshkosh Appleton, and other towns as well as the county delegates. Nine meetings will be conducted by the state department of public instruction through the state from Tuesday, Nov. 30 to Friday Dec. 10. The work will start in Kenosha for the counties of Kenosha and Racine, and the other counties will be grouped for meetings in other cities in Wisconsin.

The state program of high school supervision will be discussed at the meetings. Twenty topics will be undertaken by the supervisor.

ARTILLERY BAND WILL GIVE CONCERT DEC. 14

The next concert of the 120th Field Artillery band will be given Tuesday evening, Dec. 14, at Lawrence Memorial chapel, according to Edward F. Mumm, conductor. Because of the request of several aged residents of Appleton, the Star Spangled Banner will be programmed. The selection always closes the concert of the band but it has never been placed on the regular program because it was expected that a military organization would use it each time. Mr. Mumm said. After this a verse of the song will be sung by the audience at each concert.

SLOT MACHINE BAN IS BEING ENFORCED

A recent order issued by Municipal Judge Theodore Berg demanding that slot machines be removed from all business places in the county is being complied with, as far as can be shown by a survey of the county, it was reported Monday. The machines, Judge Berg declares, are more of a menace to youth than any other form of known petty gambling and they will not be tolerated in the county.

The prince of Wales speaks French so fluently that he makes a point of reading French books and newspapers regularly.

DISTRIBUTE REPORT CARDS ON THURSDAY

Reports for the second six weeks at Appleton high school will be completed Wednesday and distributed to the students on Thursday, it was announced at the high school office. Scholarship and "character and conduct" grades, tardiness and absence records will be included for the second term. Parents will sign the cards before they are returned to the school.

Three student office assistants, Miss Lillian Ondracek, Miss Donna Hermann and Miss Ella Gehrike, have done the recording work from the teachers' reports. The course in character and conduct is a social study given by the home room teachers to all of the students at the school. One period a week is reserved for the study.

ISSUE BIDS TO TAX MEETING ON DEC. 9

Invitations to the meeting of officials of commerce and trade associations of the state to be held here on Thursday, Dec. 9, to discuss tax problems were issued Tuesday morning from the office of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce. Approximately 350 invitations were mailed.

Besides presidents and secretaries of the commercial and trade associations, mayors and other officials of state municipalities were invited. A thorough discussion of state and local taxation will be held.

The program will contain addresses and discussions of tax experts, according to Hugh G. Corbett, general secretary of the local chamber.

"A better understanding of our state and local tax problems—problems that are bound to receive a great deal of attention at the forthcoming session of our legislature, will be obtained through these discussions, it is hoped," Mr. Corbett said.

"Business men and city officials throughout the state have assured us a meeting of this kind will do much to bring commercial organizations, trade associations and city administrations together on some definite statewide taxation plan. What we want is a plan that all can approve of and lend their support to."

The tax meeting will be held in the afternoon. It will be preceded by a meeting of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities in the morning.

THE EFFECT OF SLEEP

Professors at Yale and Colgate universities have been engaged in a very interesting series of experiments wherein they have been testing the exact effect of loss of sleep upon the mental efficiency of normal people. Several students were drilled until they had a certain average speed in doing certain mathematical problems with a certain expenditure of energy after a normal amount of sleep.

After these students had been accustomed to this routine, they were awakened one morning two hours earlier than usual and the usual problems set before them. Strange to say, they were able to accomplish the tasks much faster than when they had but a normal amount of sleep. But, and it is a big but, too, they expended two to three times as much energy in doing the tasks as when they had had a normal amount of sleep.

This must prove disappointing to those who have long contended that the average person spends too much time in sleep, and that he would be healthier and more efficient if he took less. The experiments would seem to prove that there is a certain increase in efficiency, but purchased at an enormous cost in the energy expended. There is no conservation in this, as it virtually amounts to burning the candle at both ends. Why do a thing faster if in doing so we limit the length of time that we can function efficiently?

Long practice on the part of the human race, before scientific tests were ever thought of, has convinced people that it is useless to try and cheat nature of the rest required by the human machine in each 24 hours. Experience has taught us that an average of eight hours is a necessity and to try and get along with less is inviting disaster. One's progress may be faster with less sleep, but not so permanent.

THE WHALING INDUSTRY

The whaling industry has long been considered a dead one by the average person. To him whaling was a picturesque occupation of the past when the fleet put out from New Bedford and returned with barrels of whale oil and bone in the holds and a disposition for a "high time" by the members of the crew. Many will recall the lines from an old sea song of that time:

Pipe up the band, here comes a sailor,
Money in hand, just off the whaler.

It is true that whaling, especially off the Atlantic seaboard, did suffer a decline and fall, but it has experienced a revival, with the exception that the scene has changed. Now the best whaling grounds are either off the coast of South America or in Alaska waters.

That the industry is far from a dead one is attested by the fact that the Alaskan fleet, in the year 1925, captured nearly 500 whales, according to a report of the department of commerce. These 500 whales produced 848,850 gallons of whale oil, valued at $509,310; 114,400 gallons of sperm oil, valued at 46,637; 1,069 tons of fertilizer from meat, valued at $53,372; 153 tons of bone fertilizer, valued at $3,926; 127,149 pounds of pickled meat, valued at 6,113; and 16 whole carcasses valued at $5,600, making the total value of the products of these 500 whales $624,959.

Of course the picturesque features have to a great extent disappeared. Instead of sail power, steam or motor ships are used, harpoon guns have taken the place of the harpooner standing in the bow of a lurching long-boat and modern methods of handling the captured mammals have taken almost all the romance away from the business. Nevertheless, it is still an active one and contributes a substantial share toward our national wealth.

USING OUR WATER RESOURCES

Herbert Hoover sits the greatest national need is a broad policy for the orderly development of water transportation and conservation and utilization of water power. We think he is right. Of 25,000 miles of possible inland waterways, he estimates that less than 7,000 miles are modernized, and that the utility of much of these is minimized by their isolation into segments of what should be connected transportation systems. Less than one-fifth of a possible water horsepower, or 11,000,000 has been developed. The development of both waterways and water power is essential to our material progress and prosperity. Both represent tremendous economies in production and distribution. Both should be made available under conditions that will insure to the public benefit rather than to the enrichment of individuals.

We should not encourage wholesale waterway improvements that are in advance of our transportation requirements or that are not at this time justified in our scheme of transportation economy. We should not run wild in building waterways. That would be waste of public funds and without benefit either to shippers or consumers. We should expand and perfect interior waterways as they are needed, and we should coordinate them only as fast as their use of transporting freight will justify. The first step in waterway development should be authorization of the St. Lawrence seaway. This project means more to the Mid-west than any and all other undertakings combined. It is of national value as well, for the effect of connecting the Great Lakes with the Atlantic will be felt over the entire country. As an evidence of political good-faith in dealing with waterways, let congress first proceed with this project. Others can and should wait.

In regard to water power we need a conservation policy that will safeguard this potential power until such time as it can be made available for use. If this means taking it out of the control of individuals, it should be done. However, the probability is that we can have cheaper power and better development if it is done by private capital under suitable government regulation than if undertaken by the government itself.

A UNITED CHINA

There is a prospect at the present time of a united China, something that has not obtained since 1913. Appearances give rise to the conclusion that central and south China will be consolidated under one government, although for how long no one knows and no one seems anxious to prophecy. It seems doubtful at this time that Marshal Sun Chuan-fang will be able to counteract the undermining of loyalty of his troops. The people, stirred by the students, seem eager to welcome the Cantonese and thus strength of the opposition to the Canton forces will be nullified by sedition within the ranks of Marshal Sun.

It is a great pity that China should be torn so constantly between civil conflicts. For many years it has only had a government in name. There has been no real administration of affairs, merely a shell of authority. With its potentialities China could be a really great and powerful nation, taking its proper place among the other nations in a splendid march of progress. As it is, however, unless some great leader arises to combine the factions amicably, China will end up in the scrap heap, the prey of improper foreign exploitation and an object lesson to the rest of the world. A sound American policy is to encourage in every legitimate way possible the bringing about of a strong Chinese nationalism and Chinese unity.

SUCCESS

This is success: to live beyond deceit,
Too big to play the liar or the cheat,
Too big to lean when burdens heavy grow,
Asking no favor from a friend or foe,
Standing to life and all that it may mean
With head erect and hands and conscience free.

This is success: to live from year to year
Not always asking sunny skies and clear,
But wise enough to know and understand
Life never runs exactly as we planned;
Seeking the best, but when the worst is met
Taking the blow without too much regret.

This is success: with all to play the friend,
Willing to give and glad at times to lend,
Laughing and singing whenever you may,
But walking bravely through the rainy day,
Giving your best throughout the passing years,
Neither deceived by flattery nor by sneers.

This is success: the love of friends to win,
To taste no pleasure that may lead to sin,
To take no profit from the hand of shame,
But by a fair fight win or lose the game;
To get from life such triumphs as you can,
But still through good or ill to play the man.

DOWN BY THE LINIMENT WORKS

Liniment, salve, ointment, embrocation, oil, rubbing mixture or whatever fancy name a merchant brand may coin for it, may act for good or harm in any of three possible ways. First, through the effect of the rubbing or massage with which the medicament is applied. Second, through the effect of counterirritation. Third, through the effect of absorption of medicinal substances in the liniment or other preparation so applied. I am not ignoring the influence of the odor or appearance of the liniment, nor the influence of the pictures and stories of the ads. These influences vary inversely with the enlightenment of the customer, and if the customer will give me his attention for a few minutes I hope he will be enlightened. Certainly I haven't forgotten the impressive odor of Mrs. Lengler's limbering liniment, one whiff of which would cure an ordinary sprain.

Certain fundamental principles of treatment "contraindicate" the use of liniment or any other medicament of this class, a boil on a man's shoulder contraindicates slapping him on the back. In the presence of acute, shiny or severe inflammation a strict let alone policy is advisable. No local medicament can exert sufficient sedative or soothing effect to compensate for the disturbance caused by applying it.

When you "rub it in" you may be doing good or harm in two ways, by surface friction, which amounts to counterirritation, or by kneading, which is massage. Kneading skin, muscles, fascia, tendons and tendon sheaths, blood vessels, is comparable with wringing out a soaked chamomile in a vessel of water. Kneading, rolling and squeezing, heavy strokes in the direction of the venous circulation are of distinct value in chronic arthritis and other obstinate conditions popularly called rheumatic.

Counterirritant is a well recognized physiological reaction, a familiar instance being the relief a mustard plaster on the skin gives to pain from internal congestion or inflammation. Ammonia, chloroform, turpentine, croton oil, iodin, capsicum (red pepper), mustard, peppermint, wintergreen and other aromatic oils, menthol, and other derivatives of the aromatic oils. Every one of these substances may not only irritate the skin, but if rubbed in more or less reddening or burning, if not actual blistering, but may be absorbed and exert systemic effects when applied in the form of liniment. All of the ingredients mentioned, and some other medicaments which are used in liniments, are volatilized by the warmth of the body, and inhaled more or less by the patient, or by anyone who may be in the atmosphere saturated with the vapor. This is the only way in which liniments can produce any systemic medicinal effect, unless the skin is blistered or broken, for absolutely nothing is or can be absorbed through the normal skin, no matter how "penetrating" the stuff purports to be nor how well it is "rubbed in."

Innumerable nostrums of high and low degree generally do purport to "penetrate," the uninformed or misinformed customer complacently assuming his hide absorbs the mysterious virtues of the stuff—hasn't he seen pictures of people absorbing liniment that way?

If space permitted I should append to this article a few recipes or formulas, but space does not permit, and so we'll save our household liniment for another day.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Calcium, for Migraine

Some time ago you suggested the use of 30 grain calcium lactate powders for those suffering with migraine. I have given them a thorough test, covering about a dozen attacks. While they do not break the visual disturbance characteristic of the set, they have almost completely prevented the terrific headaches which indicate their effectiveness without a doubt to me. In addition it is not necessary that I miss a meal where formerly it is impossible to partake of any food on the day in attack. Likewise the peculiar mental reaction (seizure). (C. W. F.)

Answer.—Although C. W. F. is an engineer he does not call the visual disturbance fortification spots. Calcium lactate may be taken in 30 grain powder, once daily, over a period of several weeks, the suggestion in this instance was that a dose of two taken immediately upon the coming of a aura or warning of a seizure. Calcium lactate should be followed by a large drink of water, or taken water. Occasionally it upsets the stomach. Besides migraine (periodic one-sided sick headaches) several other conditions are ameliorated or benefited by the same method of increasing calcium metabolism among them hives and giant hives (angioneurotic edema), asthma, hay fever, hypersthetic skin, chilblains.

ANOTHER EUROPEAN VISITOR IS RECALLED

HASKIN WRITES TODAY

ON—

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington, D. C. Perhaps the most extraordinary feature of the recent elections is that they developed no Republican presidential candidates. Not a single man on the G. O. P. side of the political fence gained an inch in stature as a result of what happened on November 2. It has been many years since this could be said following an off-year election.

Two and possibly three and perhaps four Democrats loom a bit larger since the latest casting and counting of ballots. Al Smith got himself re-elected Governor of New York by an impressive if not record-breaking majority and his friends did not wait for the final returns before they launched his presidential candidacy. The smile he has worn in his post-election close-ups is the kind that won't come off—at least not until after the next Democratic National Convention.

Albert C. Ritchie likewise went and got himself re-elected Governor of Maryland. He not only put himself across for a third term, which has been looked upon as virtually an impossibility in the Cockade State, but he did it by a majority which he himself says marks him as the kind of vote-getter Democracy must have in 1928 if that denkey is to be stabled again in the White House garage. The Ritchie folks, in fact, are so sanguine that they are already organizing marching clubs for the 1929 inaugural parade.

And out in Ohio Governor Vic

Donahay didn't do a thing but smash all Ohio records by carrying off gubernatorial honors for the third successive time. And he did that at the same time Republicans were being chosen for practically all the other offices of Ohio. Donahay, who won the senatorial primary of his party and thereby became much discussed as a presidential possibility, couldn't make the grade in opposition to that earnest, big-voiced Anti-Saloon Leaguer Frank B. Willis, and the odds against him for the 1928 Futurity have lengthened appreciably. But Donahay, somehow or other, has fastened himself in a lot of people's minds as a good bet, despite the fact that he has said repeatedly that he has no thought of becoming a candidate for the Presidency.

Possibly because a second tenor is needed to make it a quartet that he rendered that touching ballad "I've Got The White House Blues," a man by the name of Walsh had himself selected United States Senator up in Massachusetts. He may not be a tenor and he may have done it for other reasons. He served a term in the Senate and he may have become infatuated with the job to a degree that he insisted upon having it again. Or it may be that he got mad because a man by the name of Coolidge said that if the people of Massachusetts knew a good President when they had him they'd demonstrate by re-electing Senator Butler.

At any rate, Mr. Walsh is coming to the Senate and Mr. Butler, the President's campaign manager and close personal friend, is leaving it. To date in Walsh-for-President clubs have been organized, but he can't be overlooked by his party when it comes to choosing a contender for 1928.

Of the four, Smith probably is off in front as a candidate. He has a big block of delegates from his own State to start with, and there is every reason to assume that he will command a following from other States that will at least equal that which he held for long, dreary days in the 1924 Democratic Convention. Whether he can ever round up enough votes to nominate him as another question. He is in many respects stronger than he was in the deadlocked Madison Square Garden gathering, but he will have opposition just as bitter and relentless as he had then. If he does not get the nomination, it is an odds-on bet that he will have a great deal to say about who shall get it.

Ritchie will be more than Maryland's favorite son in the next fight. He will fall fair to a considerable part of the strength Underwood had in the early stages of the 1924 convention, and it is expected also that he will capture some of the McKedoo following. Illinois will be all done up for him in a neat package by Boss Brennan, it is said, and whatever Brennan does Tom Taggart, of Indiana, is likely to approve and trail along.

Donahay, as has been said, may not be a candidate, but may let pomere be Ohio's favorite son. Walsh if he gets into the running, will have enough votes from New England to make a creditable showing.

THREE OF THE FOUR ARE WETS

Three of these four Democrats whose presidential stock has gone up as a result of the recent elections are wets, the Ohio Governor being the one dry. Some of the political forecasters declare that the Democratic party is not yet ready to name a wet candidate for President and for that reason they read Smith, Ritchie, and Walsh all out of the race. Others say that by 1928 the Democrats will not even consider a candidate who is not as wet as the Atlantic Ocean.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, did not make any political capital out of the election, but out of his pre-election work in investigating primary expenditures in Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Indiana he managed to make a very considerable asset. He is now more talked about as a presidential possibility than ever before, and more seriously considered.

So much for a few of the Democrats who are up and coming. As for the

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York — While dogs and cats continue to be the most popular pets, celebrities of New York could fill a Noah's Ark with the collection of beasts and birds to which they have become attached.

Thus E. F. Albee, vaudeville impresario, has two baby elephants, Jeanne Eagles, the lovely stage star, has a parrot which—rumor be correct—can say something stronger than "darn it!" Billy Burke, wife of Governor Al, is quite fond of a pet monkey. Vincent Lopez, the orchestra leader, has an alligator in his bathtub—or wherever he keeps it. Lenore Ulrich has a famous kute, John Barrymore has a trick ape, of organ grinder vintage.

And so it goes.

The East Side is tremendously proud of those persons who leap its boundaries to win name and fame in the American whirl. The oldsters look with not a little fear upon the younger generations in whom they see a breaking down of old customs, tastes and ways.

But let those youngsters go forth and win and the whole Ghetto turns out to cheer.

And they do go "home." There are "home-coming" strutters on the East Side, as elsewhere. Scores more use their new positions to cement old ties to new ones. They try to keep alive much that is fine in the old and convert the oldsters to much that is fine in the new.

The other night I wandered over to watch the opening of a new Yiddish theater, through which two men who have risen to success hope to win back the youngsters to the old drama. To do this they had to house the fine old works in a place that would parallel the Broadway lures of the young folk.

And I saw two men—Louis N. Jaffe, who built the place, and Maurice Schwartz, who puts on the dramas. If there are two men typical of my point, here they are.

Schwartz came from Russia at the age of 12. He worked in a rag shop through the daylight hours, and studied by night. One day he saw David Kessler, great Yiddish tragedian, and in due time, became an actor.

Jaffe also came as a penniless immigrant. He had studied to be a rabbi, gave it up and left Russia. He came to America and sold newspapers until he was sufficiently skilled to be a cigarmaker. But he studied at night.

That is the real point of both these stories—the boys studied at night. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

Republicans, while none of them gained strength as a result of the balloting on November 2, it is barely possible that in one case a defeat may be turned to advantage later on. Senator Wadsworth of New York will have to yield his toga to a Democrat, but there may be a reaction in his favor that will find expression in making him a real-for-sure candidate for White House honors, and with the senatorial job off his hands he may have more time and more energy to put into making the race for President than he otherwise would.

Longworth of Ohio is not considered to be any stronger as a result of the election, but he held his own, which is more than some others did, and that may be regarded as an asset. Senator Frank B. Willis may decide, however, that since his victory over Pomerehe he is the logical candidate for Ohio Republicans to put forward, which would make it rough sledding for Longworth.

In Indiana "Jim" Watson pulled through, but under conditions such that the leaders say he will never be considered a factor in the presidential equation. Vice president Dawes and former Governor Lowden possibly can not be said to have lost anything as a result of the election, but in the light of the comment that is heard in Washington it is quite certain that they did not gain anything.

One Republican notable who unfortunately suffered a setback on November 2 is President Coolidge. He made a personal appeal to the voters of Massachusetts to re-elect Senator Butler, and they heeded him not. Expert opinion as to the effect this will have on the contest for the Republican nomination for President two years hence is divided, but there are few who are able to dispute out that it will help Mr. Coolidge in event he decides to be a candidate.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

A Thief Pays For His Crimes

Trapped Coyote

BY ARTHUR N. PACK

President, American Nature Ass'n. Only a wandering and thieving prairie wolf this, caught at last in a trap. He perchance has been levying on the barnyard flock of Plymouth Rocks, or the herd of Southdowns. Now he has come to the end of his thieving.

True, we moved into his haunts, the hills and valleys where for ages he had hunted the jack rabbit and ground squirrel. We shot his rabbits and poisoned his squirrels.

Meantime, as these grew scarce he learned that hens were foolish creatures. So he ate, and now we have him here with his foot in the trap. He sprang the trap early last night and since then he alternately has crouched, shivering and dull-eyed, or has striven frantically to break his way to freedom. But with each effort the steel has bitten its way deeper.

Presently we see his skin dressed and satin-lined, thrown over the shoulders of some fat lady, or with several of his fellow sufferers, fashioned into an automobile coat.

Suppose the coyote which we have just seen in the trap, had been born a marten or mink, or civet, or muskrat. In that case he never would have harbored evil thoughts concerning a sheep, and might never have done a worse deed than to bite the foot of the sweet-flag, or catch the wandering field mouse. But his suffering in the trap would have been just as

HIGHWAY 15 FAR FROM EASY ROAD FOR MOTORISTS

Farmers Peaved at Stories of "Holdup" Prices for Helping Drivers

Motorists are warned not to attempt to make a trip to Green Bay via highway 15 until the road has been properly opened. William Micke, who lives about three miles north of Kaukauna on this highway, said drifts are from two to four feet deep, and the snow has melted and formed ice in the bottom of deep ruts. If a car gets in one of these ruts it is almost impossible to get out without help.

According to Mr. Micke, the rumors that have been floating through the county for the past few days of profiteering farmers who charge $5 apiece to stranded motorists from snow drifts, are the fabrication of a distorted mind. Some motorists were peaved because the farmer had the audacity to charge a dollar or two for getting out of bed during the night, hitching his team and accommodating the motorist by pulling him from the snow and stretching their stories, Mr. Micke said.

"I suppose the autoist thinks we farmers should do this work gratis, work our teams until they nearly drop from exhaustion and then thank him for allowing us to help him," Mr. Micke declared.

Mr. Micke stated that he had pulled about 10 motorists from the snow on the first night and he has been pulling several through the drifts every night since the heavy fall. He states that the most he charged was $2, although it was worth more.

One farming living near Mr. Micke pulled between 30 and 35 stranded motorists from the snow and he also charged only $1 and $2 each. Mr. Micke said. Various reports, exaggerated considerably, Mr. Micke declared, indicated that several farmers had made from $50 to $200 a night by pulling autoists through the drifts at $5 a pull.

"Even if we didn't charge that much, I think it was worth it," Mr. Micke said.

FARMERS CONSIDER KEEPING ROADS OPEN

Farmers in the town of Center and the town of Maine may keep Highway 47 and the side roads in this section of the county free of snow this winter, if plans which are being discussed at present materialize. Because of the heavy rains during the summer, the road tax money was not used for improvements and as a result there is money in the treasury of each of these towns. Action may be taken to use this money to keep the roads free of snow. Although the roads will not be plowed, heavy graders will be used to level the roads after each storm and put them in shape for traffic.

BAUER BACK ON JOB, BUT WITH CRUTCHES

John H. Bauer, 115 E. Kimball-st., plumbing inspector, who fractured his left ankle in an automobile accident several weeks ago, put in an appearance at his office again Monday morning and informed his co-workers that he was back on the job for good, if only for a few hours each day for another week or so. He still requires crutches to get about, but it is expected that in a short while he will again be keeping pace with the best of city officials.

Science May Soon Create Man To Specifications

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN

New Brunswick, N. J. — Though science has thus far failed to create a man in its laboratories, it may in the future be able to grow one exactly to specifications.

For soil chemistry, which has made great advances in determining what kind of plants shall inhabit the earth, is now hard at work on man.

Dr. Jacob Lipman, director of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, announces this new idea. "Whereas we now fertilize for alfalfa, or cotton or wheat, we may in time be able to fertilize for man's physical health, temperament and artistic talents. We may discover the exact chemical which is needed to grow a race of musical geniuses, or of students or of farmers."

CHEMISTRY MODIFIES HUMANS This does not mean, of course, that types of men can ever be grown on huge plantations, as cotton is grown now. But it is true, Dr. Lipman declares, that soil chemistry can greatly modify types of human beings and other animals, according to the design of the chemist.

"Everything goes back to chemistry," he says. "Plants depend upon the soil, and vary as the soil varies. Animals live upon the plants, or upon other animals that eat them, and therefore are also dependent on soil chemistry."

"Animal types in China and Japan, where rice is the main food, differ widely from the animals of South America, where beans and maize are the staples."

"We have learned that soils minus iodine produce animals inclined to goiter. Sociologists may not have understood the prevalence of feeble-mindedness among people of pinetree regions, such as the New Jersey coast, but the chemist realizes that the soil of these regions lacks phosphate of lime and manganese, two very essential elements in physical and mental growth."

"He also has noticed that the men of West Virginia and Kentucky and central New York are tall and powerful, because those soils are rich in lime."

"We are learning that the chemicals present in the soil in small amounts may be just as important to human development as the more prominent ones, that minute deposits of copper, zinc, manganese, fluorine and boron may control the growth of both plants and animals."

IMMIGRANT CHILDREN TALLER "Of course the richer the soil, the bigger the plants, and consequently, the animals. The children of immigrants to the United States are taller, generally speaking, than their parents, because they are reared on soil that has not been exhausted by centuries of use."

"It is our problem to discover what fertilizers to use, in order to enrich the soil and keep our national health and stature up to standard."

"War statistics showed that the average American is much larger than the European. I attribute this partly to the intrinsic richness of American soil and partly to the complex diet achieved by means of American transportation systems."

"A New Yorker sits down to breakfast at a table loaded with food from seven or eight parts of the country—grapefruit from Florida, cream from Long Island, sausage from Missouri, wheat rolls or griddle cakes from Minnesota or Kansas."

"Because of this mixed diet, we see distinctive regional types disappearing. The Uncle Sam type of New Englander, which was the product of the codfish and Indian corn diet, combined with the strenuous outdoor life of the early period, is fast giving way to a type fattened by meat and vegetables from the south and middle west. He is less muscular than his forebears because less active. "Soil, climate and cultural conditions work together to produce animal types. Probably the greatest of these is soil."

FUTURE AMERICANS LARGER The future American, as prophesied by the soil chemist, will be larger and more alert than preceding generations. His mixed diet will not only produce brawn, but also brain, and the increasing prosperity of the country will develop culture.

Another factor in his favor is his mixed racial heritage, bringing the physical and mental strength of many peoples into the children from which he is brewed, says Dr. Lipman. The time may come when man will consciously rule his own development, when he will fertilize the land to improve his own descendants, and when every restaurant menu card will carry, not only a caloric count, but a notation of the places from which the foods come, so that the wary diner may balance his rations by geography as well as by heat units.

TEN WILL ATTEND Y'S MEN'S JAMBOREE

Appleton Club Sends Representatives to District Meeting in Green Bay

Ten members of Appleton Y's Men's club will attend the first annual jamboree of Wisconsin district clubs at Green Bay Wednesday afternoon and evening, according to reports made at the regular meeting Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Four clubs of the district, Appleton, Green Bay, Wausau and Milwaukee, will be represented at the sessions, which will start at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The most important business of the meetings will be round table discussions of club problems and the election of a district governor to succeed Dr. C. C. Schneider, Milwaukee, new national governor.

New club songs for the Green Bay conference were practiced Monday evening and plans were made for programs at the next two regular meetings.

After the business meeting A. P. Jensen, association physical director, talked on Life Saving. He demonstrated the holds and their breaks with the aid of members of the club and concluded his talk with a demonstration of artificial respiration.

The program was completed by three fast rounds of boxing by two Lawrence college boxers. E. H. Wright was in charge of the program.

CITY CLERK PREPARING CITY'S NEW TAX ROLL

E. L. Williams, city clerk, and Miss Marge J. Fose, his assistant, are busy preparing the tax roll, for collection in 1927. They started their task last Tuesday, Nov. 23, the day following the recessed meeting of the common council when the tax rate was fixed. The roll probably will be completed the latter part of this week and turned over to Fred E. Bachman, city treasurer next week. The dates for collection of taxes have not yet been set, but it is expected that the city treasurer will have his office prepared for this purpose a few days after Christmas.

WATCHED MIDNIGHT LYNCHERS

An investigation which Governor G. McLeod, of South Carolina, is conducting into the lynching of three negro prisoners at Aiken centers upon the statements of Mrs. Lucy Mooney, of Aiken (above). From the cell in which she was then held as a material witness in a liquor case, she says she saw the jail stormed and recognized a number of the mob.

COURT FORCES GIRLS TO ENROLL IN SCHOOL

Three of four girls who were taken to court last week on truancy charges have enrolled in the Appleton schools, according to J. G. Pfeil, truant officer. Mr. Pfeil expressed satisfaction over the attendance condition in the schools this year. There have been fewer truancy cases than in any other year, he said, and only four more young people are to be brought up in court.

The court cases last week included two 17 and two 16-year old girls. Both of the older and one younger have enrolled in school, and Mr. Pfeil will take further action with the other 16-year old. The girls had been working part of the time and staying at home the remainder. According to the Wisconsin school laws, any person under 18 years of age is required to attend school at least one day a week.

Report on Conference Reports of the annual Older Boys' conference which was held at Racine over the last weekend will occupy the evening for members of the Hi-Y club at the regular meeting Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. The club was represented by a large delegation.

The largest Protestant church in the world is St. Paul's Cathedral in London, England.

FIND YOUNGSTERS SELLING PAPERS

Pfeil Warns Against Employing Children Under 12 for "Street Trades"

Violations of the "street trades" regulations have been found during the past week by J. G. Pfeil, truant officer. Several boys under 12 years of age are selling newspapers, the officer stated, and employers have been warned of the consequences of continued employment.

The child labor laws require that no person under 12 years of age shall be employed at any trade, and that employment permits are necessary for persons between the ages of 12 and 17 years, it was said. Small boys have been selling newspapers here contrary to the street trades laws which prevents boys under 12 years and girls under 18 years practicing any industry of selling or soliciting on the street. Employers of younger boys or girls are shown little consideration by the industrial commission, Mr. Pfeil said, and if the condition continues in Appleton, they will be reported to that body.

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

"Dad," Faith followed her father to the front porch the next morning, as he was leaving for his work. "Are you and--Bob Hathaway getting along all right?"

Jim Lane's near-sighted brown eyes peered at her with intent, searching kindness. "About as usual," he answered slowly. "He's gettin' pretty restless about the job--them bungalows I'm buildin' for him. That spell of rain we had last week played hob with the cement work, like I told you, and the roof of the finished house sprung three bad leaks. But he's a mighty white chap--none whiter. Ain't seen him around here much lately. Must be two-three weeks now, hasn't he? You haven't had a quarrel, have you, daughter?"

Faith swallowed the lump in her throat and kissed him on the cheek. "Not exactly, Dad. But I suppose he's got lots of other friends who take up his time. Junior said he had Selma Pruitt with him yesterday, looking at his bungalows."

"Yes, so he did," Jim Lane answered with careful casualness. "Nice girl, Selma. But she can't hold a candle to your honey, and I'll bet Bob Hathaway's smart enough to know it."

"You--you really think he's trust-worthy, honorable?" she persisted, in spite of her desire to hide her wounds from her father's loving eyes.

"None straighter," Jim Lane answered emphatically. "Well, I got to hurry, honey. Don't let that mahogany-headed female work you too hard today. He concluded, referring to "Madame Denise," who was just than parking her smart coupe before the Lane house.

Faith watched her father's stooped figure move slowly and rheumatically down the walk, and waited for "Madame Denise" to join her on the porch.

"I'm sorry," she began, after greetings, "that I won't be able to help you and Mrs. Hogan this morning. I have business in town. I was wondering if Mrs. Hogan, could put the fine touches on that black satin house work. I'd like to wear it if she could."

"I'll see that she does," "Madame Denise" looked at her with sudden interest. "You didn't sleep much last night and you're nervous as a cat this morning. Say, dearie, bring me in that black satin hat you were showing me, and I'll give it a twist and a stitch and a new feather fancy and make it as slick as new."

Household Hints

BETTER TASTE IN VEGETABLES

Soak all vegetables in cold water before cooking. This will make the vegetables crisp and more tasty and will also remove all insect eggs and dirt that still remains on them.

BAKING MOLASSES CAKES

Cakes containing molasses burn easily. They should be baked in tins lined with greased paper and in an oven that is not too hot.

HOT WATER FOR TEA

When you are making tea be sure that the water is boiling hot, before you pour it over the tea leaves. Water below the boiling point will give the tea a flat, bitter taste.

SAVES YOUR STRENGTH

If you have a small family you may save time and strength by doing your dishes all at one time. Scrub and pile them in an orderly pile, pour hot water over them, and let them stand until the most convenient hour for washing them.

NATURAL ICE BOX

During the cold wintry months the ice box can be cut down. If the air is cool enough to keep butter from melting when you place it in the window ice box, you can safely leave any foods exposed outside and they will not spoil.

DRESS IT UP

Ice cream is more than ordinarily interesting if you serve it in a dish lined with lady fingers, with preserved fruit and whipped cream over the top.

FOR FISH SAUCE

Two table-spoons of catsup and two of horseradish in your mayonnaise dressing make an excellent sauce for garden or canned fish.

A COAL MINE

In these days of coal shortage it would be wise for you to buy an ash-

CLOTHING HIDES WIDE HIP OF OUR AMERICAN WOMEN

The science of line in clothes is something for every woman to study for herself. But the science of a dress which has only lines to make it famous is something worthy of particular consideration. This is a thing comparatively new in the history of clothes--a dress with lines to make up its design, no trimming, no decoration, but just the material and perhaps a spot of embroidery somewhere about to add a touch of color.

Today we are studying particularly the woman whose hips are inclined to be large. They need not be mammoth in size. Indeed, they can be very small by actual measurement, but when they are larger in proportion than the shoulders, then there is a pertinent question raised.

The line of the dress can obviate any difficulty of this sort. The dress is the magician when it is rightly done, but the science of choosing or designing the proper dress is a new thing in the history of women and it must be thought out in almost every instance by the woman herself. Of course if she can pay from $200 to $600 for each dress she buys, but there are comparatively few of us who can make that grade. The most of us who would be well dressed face the problem of thinking out these new ideas for themselves and of applying them to ourselves with more or less success until we strike the scheme which is exactly right.

DRESSES NOT MADE FOR LARGE HIP

It is one of the most humorous situations when you come to think of it, that the American woman, nine times out of ten, has large hips, but that all of the dresses designed to fit her (or we might say nearly all) are built for these slender lines in this direction. This is a sorrowful situation, but one that can be overcome with the greatest ease when you as an individual put your mind to it.

Now for hips that are large in proportion as well as those which can be called "nothing except actually large, the draping around the hips means everything. You can do it in one way or another for there are lots of subtle tricks.

A VERY ADAPTABLE DRESS

You can do this sort of design for the slenderest girl on earth and still have her ravishing and lovely looking. It is not a rule that is applied to large women alone and for that reason it is particularly successful. It is not a fat woman's dress, than which there is nothing worse, but it is a dress which is adaptable to all sorts and conditions of figures and which lends itself to the glorification of any sort of figure when properly applied.

There are possibilities in this trick for divergent sorts of figures. For the stout figure the skirt is made over a flat and fitted 1-piece foundation. To this are applied four oblong pieces of the same material fastened at the lowered waistline that they fall away in graceful panel folds. They can be placed along their edges or finished with a French hand sewn binding just as you desire, but in any event they retain that soft and flowing line which marks them as a part of the modern mode and clinches them as representatives of the smartest thing in fashion just now.

For the smaller figure which is seeking this graceful, flowing line, the batch of embroidery on the front of the bodice can be used, but for the fuller figure that should, by all means, be omitted, and the dress should cling to one solid color, with nothing to interrupt the classic sweep of the line as a continuous thing.

MATERIALS THAT ARE DESIRABLE

A dress of this general character is nice when it is made in the heavier quality of crepe de chine or in satin, or even in velvet or brocade as the case may be. The general design may be applied to a morning, afternoon or evening dress if it is the one which happens to suit the contour of your figure best. It is the illustration of a principle, that is all--the principle which is adapted best to the woman whose hips are large in proportion to the rest of her figure.

Now this is mostly about Mr. Ramsey, but I think I should like to know Mrs. Ramsey. She did not stop to say, "What's to become of me? Surely I am as important as an old bank!" I have a notion that the bakery idea may have been hers in the first place. But after the business grew to a certain point she retired and left it in the hands of her husband.

I know another woman accustomed to all the luxuries of life--butler and all the rest of it, who when her husband lost his fortune, took her family to the country, planted her own garden, and kept cows, pigs and chickens. She did all her own work, milked the cows and churned the butter. All this to keep two sons in college until they had finished, and to give her husband a chance to get back on his feet.

Before she went to the country she did not know one end of a cow from the other. Things are fine with them now. Whose is the credit?

Mr. Ramsey was offered the position of mayor. He was too busy to accept. But he is president of the Chamber of Commerce, Berger is no longer a lawless oil town. It is an up and coming city.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST -- Stewed figs with orange slices, cereal, thin cream, toast, buckwheat cakes, sausage, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON -- Mushrooms in tomato sauce on toast, celery hearts, Brown Betty, milk, tea.

DINNER -- Beef soup, pan broiled pork chops, twice baked sweet potatoes, corn custard, stuffed prune salad, bran rolls, lemon sponge pie, milk, coffee.

The luncheon dish of mushrooms on toast is worth keeping in mind for chafing dish use during the Christmas holidays. It will prove quite as popular as Welsh rarebit and is much easier to make. And remember if you have no chafing dish, it's quite as good made in a tomato from the kitchen.

MUSHROOMS IN TOMATO SAUCE

One-half pound mushrooms, 1 cup grated cheese, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoon minced parsley, 1-2 teaspoon onion juice.

Clean and peel mushrooms. Break in small pieces. Heat butter in saucepan and simmer mushrooms for five minutes. Rub tomatoes through a colander to remove seeds. Add tomatoes and cheese to mushrooms and heat until cheese is melted. Season with salt, parsley and onion juice and add eggs well beaten. Stir and cook over a low fire until mixture thickens. Serve on squares of hot toast.

WEIGHED ONLY 98 POUNDS

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio. -- "After having my first baby, I lost weight, and I didn't know what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I got worse. I was always sickly and went down to 93 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles for six weeks, I weigh 115 pounds. I have just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."--Mrs. M. REISSINGER, 10004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear, and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose?

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

OBSERVE DIAMOND WEDDING

Columbus, Ga.—Bad news for the matrimonial cynics: Columbus has discovered and appropriately honored Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Owen Blackmar, married 75 years.

True love endures, their diamond anniversary attests. That there are occasional exceptions to prove that its course is never smooth is evident in their benevolent, contented expressions.

From Maine to California came the friends, old and young, who were present to help Mr. and Mrs. Blackmar celebrate the occasion. One of them was Mrs. Josephine Peabody who was a bridesmaid on that equally festive day in 1851 when Blackmar led Miss Ann Blood to the altar.

All their lives since then have been lived in Columbus. Forty-seven of Mrs. Blackmar's 95 and of her husband's 96 years have been lived in the same home on Fourth avenue. From it they have seen their descendants increase to 37.

"I'd like the best in the world to live here with Alfred 47 years more," said Mrs. Blackmar.

Something for the Nat Goodwinites to think about!

YOUNG PEOPLE OF CHURCH TO GIVE YULE PARTY

A Christmas party for young people of First English Lutheran church will be given by the Young People society on Monday, Dec. 20 at the parish hall. Committees were appointed at the regular monthly meeting of the society Monday night to make arrangements for the affair.

Elsie Mau, Hertha Rhode, Ramona Huesemann, and Eva Mossholder were appointed on the committee to arrange for a program and Mable Kranzsch, Viola Weidman, Gertrude Schultz and Valborg Hedberg are on the luncheon committee. The young people are to bring the blanks which were distributed early in the year.

Three new members were received into the society at the meeting Monday night. A committee was appointed to have charge of the luncheon at the next regular monthly meeting in December. Members are Eva Mossholder, Mildred Albrecht and Anton Gauerke.

LODGE NEWS

The third degree was conferred on a class of three candidates at the meeting of Kenosha lodge of Odd Fellows Monday night in Odd Fellow hall. Officers for the ensuing year will be elected at the meeting next Monday night.

The regular meeting of Deborah Rebekah lodge will be held at 7:45 Wednesday night in Odd Fellow hall. Election of officers is on the calendar.

The regular business meeting of Fraternal Order of Eagles will be held at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in Eagle hall. The weekly attendance prize will be given and a lunch will be served.

Ladies Auxiliary of Eagles will hold their monthly visiting day at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon in Eagle hall. Mrs. August Haferbecker is chairman of arrangements. Schafkopf and dice will be played.

CITY CLERK RESTING EASIER AGAIN, REPORT

E. L. Williams, city clerk, rested easier Monday night than he has at any time for a week, it was reported Tuesday morning at the city hall. Almost completely with his task of preparing the city's tax roll, he was not at all sure but what he might have to do the work all over again in view of the controversy which had arisen between the city and county over the county over the county tax levy. He really didn't think the roll would have to be prepared again, but he wasn't sure, and of course he received little encouragement from those who called at his office. If he harbored any worries, they were dispelled Monday night, for it was clearly indicated at the common council meeting that his work with the tax roll would be completed as soon as he determines the tax of the last bit of assessed property in the city.

150 Persons See Drama Club Plays

The two one-act plays produced by the Dramatic Workshop of the Appleton Womens club at the Playhouse Monday evening were praised by the capacity audience for the characterization, the sets and the direction. About 150 persons were present in the "little theatre." Miss Elinor Strickland, recreation secretary at the club, was in charge of the coaching, costumes and settings.

Goodman and Hecht's "Wonder Hat" was a fantastic play using the romantic characters of Columbine, Pierrot, Harlequin, Punchinello and Margaret. A pleasing set of an outdoor scene had been made by members of the workshop. Members of the cast were Miss Arvela Krautseh, Roy Darling, Roy Olsen, Miss Dorothy Verrier and Miss Lillian Rogers. "The Trysting Place" by Booth Tarkington, was amusing in plot and was well developed by the cast. The scene was laid indoors. Characters in the play were Miss Laura Schoettler, Miss Marcela Klumpers, Miss Dean Chamberlain, Gordon Ratzman, Wesley Stokes, Robert Currie, Roy Darling.

Members of the workshop who assisted in the productions were Miss Flora Hutz and Miss Marcela Klumpers, prompters; Miss Mabel Feavel, properties manager; Mrs. John Engel, Jr., and Miss Dolle Chamberlain, makeup; Miss Dorothy Verrier, Miss Cecile Quella, Miss Anne Bolsen, and Miss Carolyn Schaal, costumes.

Miss Harriet Melhinch and Miss Gertrude Lanzar gave violin and piano selections between acts.

TEACHERS DISCUSS FINAL EXAMINATIONS

Final Examinations and the Newer Type of Questions was discussed at the meeting of the faculty committee to have charge of the January professional faculty meeting at Appleton high school (Miss Blanche McCarthy presided at the meeting as chairman of the committee).

Preliminary plans for the program on Jan. 3, were made by the committee, and these will be worked out by the individual members. Professional faculty meetings will be held at the school each month to consider topics of particular interest to the teaching profession and especially to the local faculty. Three meetings have been held this year on: Marks and the Marking System, with Miss Ethel Carter, chairman; and Supervised Study, two meetings, with Miss Margaret Abraham, chairman.

WEDDINGS

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Dorothy Harth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harth, 516 N. Clarke-st. to William Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krueger, N. Superior-st. The ceremony was performed at 9 o'clock Saturday morning at Menominee, Mich. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will make their home on N. Superior-st.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

The Men's Friendship class of First Methodist church will meet at 7:30 Friday evening at the semi-monthly recreational period. The class will attend a motion picture at 7:30 in a body and will meet for exercise in the gymnasium following the program. A special committee is in charge of the recreational program.

A Christmas program and party will follow the I. B. club supper at First Methodist church at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. Miss Dorothy Krittner is chairman of the committee in charge. All young business and professional women are invited to attend.

Company F of the Social union of First Methodist church will meet at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Graef, W. Atlantic-st. Mrs. H. B. Peterson is captain of the group.

BAZAAR PLANS ARE PERFECTED

Committees in charge of the annual Christmas bazaar to be given jointly by the Womens Missionary society and the Christian Endeavor society of First Reformed church Wednesday in the church basement, met Monday night to make final plans for the affair. A lunch will be served in connection with the bazaar beginning at 12 o'clock.

The decorating committee is composed of Miss Eva Engel, Miss Ruth Brandt, Arthur Engel and Miss Ruth Meyer. Members of the committee in charge of marking articles for the bazaar are Mrs. Harry Herzog, Mrs. August Brandt, Mrs. George Leemhuis, Mrs. Herman Meyer, Miss Evelyn Schultz, Miss Evelyn Brandt and Miss Tillie Jahn, chairman.

Wednesday by the Ladies Aid society of St. Matthew church. The dinner will be served commencing at 10 o'clock throughout the day, instead of from 11 to 1 o'clock and from 5 to 7 o'clock as was formerly announced. The proceeds of the bazaar will go into the building fund.

The Zion Lutheran Mission society will hold a social meeting at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in assembly room of Zion school. Hostesses will be Mrs. Alma Buessing, Mrs. Myrtle Kling, Mrs. Ida Braeger and Mrs. Anna Belling.

The Ladies Aid society of Mt. Olive Lutheran church will hold a business meeting at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon in the church parlors. New officers will be elected.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found how to save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for results. It gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugstore, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable medicinal, known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

KAUKAUNA-LITTLE CHUTE-KIMBERLY

NEARBY
TOWNSGREEN BAY LINE
RESUMES HOURLY
SERVICE ON CARS

Reinstate Former Schedule
Because Highways are Snowbound

Kaukauna—Hourly service will be resumed by the Wisconsin Public Service company on the Kaukauna-Green Bay interurban line starting Sunday morning, December 5, according to advices from the main offices of the company in Green Bay. Hourly service was discontinued some time ago by the company because, it claimed, there was no traffic on the line. A three hour service was inaugurated which was unsatisfactory to rural districts.

The hourly service is temporary and has been ordered, according to the company, because of the early winter which practically closed the roads between here and Green Bay. Another reason was because of the Christmas season when a great many people travel. The company will discontinue the hourly service in the spring unless there is more business on the line.

The first car will leave Green Bay for Kaukauna at 5:30 in the morning, reaching Kaukauna at 6:45. The first car will leave Kaukauna at 6:45 for Green Bay and hourly service will be continued from then until the 6:30 car leaves Green Bay in the evening. Green Bay will be continued up until when the last trip will be made.

Hourly service from Kaukauna to Green Bay will be continued up until 6:45 in the evening. The last car will leave for Green Bay at 10:45, arriving at 12 o'clock.

SENIORS, SOPHS
BATTLE FOR TITLE

Winners of First Games of Interclass Tourney Clash
for Championship

Kaukauna—Kaukauna High school interclass basketball tournament opened Monday evening in the high school auditorium with the Seniors and Sophomores winning their games. The Seniors and the Sophomores played the feature game of the evening which was won by the latter, 8 to 3. The score at half time was 1 and 0 in favor of the Juniors. Esler and Farwell starred for the Sophs and Bielek did some good playing for the Juniors.

In the other game of the evening the Seniors ran away with the Freshmen. The Seniors showed up well with six baskets to his credit. Macorie and Verbeten got four baskets each.

The championship game will be played in the auditorium Tuesday afternoon between the Seniors and the Sophs. Starting Wednesday Coach Smith will get his varsity practice under way. According to Mr. Smith Monday evening five sophomores and two seniors have shown up the best so far.

The lineups:
Juniors—Kemp, rf; Tittman, lf; Miller, c; Bielek, rf; Dicus, lg.
Sophomores—Esler, rf; Farwell, lf; Sager, r; c; Seger, b; rg; Miller, m, lg.
Seniors—Macorie, rf; Cook, lf; McFadden, c; Nole, rg; Verbeten, lg.
Freshmen—Chezik, rf; Gerhart, lf; Van Dyke, c; Ashe, rg; Grogan, lg.
Substitutions: Bartsch for Macorie and Fahnke for McFadden for the Seniors and Hale for Gerhart, Frank for Ashe and Haass for Grogan for the Freshmen.

Social Items

Kaukauna—The Ladies Aid society of First Congregational church will hold a church supper and bazaar in the church parlors Thursday afternoon. The bazaar will open at 2 o'clock.

A church bazaar and chili lunch will be given by the Ladies Aid society of the Lutheran Reformed church Tuesday afternoon in the church basement. The chili lunch will start at 6 o'clock.

Cooling of houses by gas refrigerating machines at a cost of keeping the same homes comfortable in winter is predicted within the next five years.

TOOTING WHISTLE
SENDS HUNTERS OFF
ON TRIP TO NORTH

Kaukauna—Three Kaukauna hunters left for the north Monday amid the tooting of whistles and a general commotion. The hunters so honored were R. H. McCarthy, chief of police; John Coppes, former mayor and William Van Lieshout, garage owner. The three men were quite surprised by the wild celebration.

McCarthy, Coppes and Van Lieshout left on the 10 o'clock north bound train Monday morning, expecting to spend part of Monday visiting friends at Wausau and Merrill. The train left Kaukauna with the hunters abroad all right, but just when it got beyond Kimberly the engine whistle became stuck after blowing for a crossing and refused to stop despite the efforts of the train crew to shut it off. The engine was losing much steam through the continual blowing of the whistle and the conductor decided it would be impossible to continue the trip with that engine. Consequently orders were given to back the train up to Kaukauna to change engines. All the way back from Kimberly the whistle blew and the citizens of Kaukauna hearing all the noise rushed hither and thither, in an effort to find out whether a second Armistice had been signed.

When they learned that it was an engine whistle they all rushed to the station to greet the train, expecting perhaps, that Queen Marie had caught her mind and was coming to Kaukauna for a visit. As the train pulled in they saw our three prominent townsmen attired in full hunting regalia wondering why there trip should be so disturbed. Shortly afterwards the train left with a good behaving engine whistle and the city settled down to its usual routine.

COMBINED LOCKS GIRL
WEDS NEILSVILLE MAN

Kaukauna—Miss Viola Wiedenhaupt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Wiedenhaupt, Combined Locks road, became the bride of Gust Goralitz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Goralitz of Neillsville at a pretty wedding Wednesday, Nov. 24. The Rev. F. Brandt of Appleton performed the ceremony. Miss Alice Wiedenhaupt, sister of the bride and Miss Beatrice Grimm of Chicago, were the bridesmaids and Harry Otto of Oshkosh and Werner Lietz of Appleton were the groomsmen. A reception was held for the newly married couple at the bride's home after the ceremony. A wedding dinner was served to some hundred guests.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. Lietz, Carl Brueggemann and family, Mrs. J. Schilt, Mrs. Roy Schabo and son, Mrs. C. Christenson and Mr. and Mrs. John Kobs and son, all of Appleton; Mr. and Mrs. L. Treibel and family, Mrs. F. Schubring and daughter of Wausau; Mr. and Mrs. William Klabeinde, Harry Otto of Oshkosh and F. Goralitz and daughter of Neillsville.

BROADCASTER BUYS ADVERTISING SPACE

Twin Cities Station Contracts for Newspaper Space to Present Programs

Twin Cities, Minn. — The time is not distant when radio stations will be required to buy space in newspapers to advertise their daily programs, says H. A. Bellows, manager of radio station WCCO, St. Paul-Minneapolis.

Anticipating this time WCCO already has contracted for space in local papers, and is giving a detailed account of each day's radio program. Not only is the name of the program given but also the name of the sponsor when there is one.

"With the large number of programs published by the newspapers each day, it is impossible for them to devote much space to any individual feature," says Bellows. "The result is that the average radio listener, reading over the programs and trying to determine which he shall listen to, sometimes is in considerable doubt as to the exact nature of the programs.

With the advent of commercial programs, newspapers faced another problem. Many of the programs looked worse under trade names. If newspapers listed them as such this would obviously be free advertising.

"Since commercial programs not only support broadcasting but are, as a rule, the best program on the air, the radio station is finding it necessary to give these programs better advertising than can be had from a daily program schedule of all stations.

"The successful radio station," Bellows adds, "sooner or later must take its place as an independent industry, receiving compensation for its services and in turn paying its own way.

"The day rapidly is passing when the broadcaster can expect to be coddled and nursed along by outside agencies. It must stand on its own feet and prove the right to its existence by means of their own strength and ability will have to join the failures of other business enterprises."

STAGE And SCREEN

GIRL'S FIGHT FOR ERRANT LOVE THEME OF "UNFAIR SEX"

The game fight of a young and delicately bred girl to win back her sweetheart, who has fallen under the spell of an alluring and unscrupulous woman, provides an engrossing plot for the engrossing photoplay, "The Unfair Sex," at the New Bijou Wednesday and Thursday.

Further complications are caused by the attempt of the charmer's confederate to ensure the girl, herself, in a compromising situation, and to relieve her of her jewels, of which she has a considerable and costly number.

The girl, portrayed by Hope Hampton, assents to the villain's plan to play with him, thus making her sweetheart, Walter Miller, realize his mistake. But the villain, Holbrook Blinn, had not reckoned on one weak point in his scheme—namely, the raging jealousy of his partner, Nita Naldi, who plays the enchantress.

And when the grand climax comes, her hot anger and resentment turn the tables, and the unexpected happens.

"The Unfair Sex" stars Hope Hampton and Holbrook Blinn of stage and screen fame, and Nita Naldi and Walter Miller, favorites of all film fans. The fast moving story is the work of Eugene Walter.

BESSIE LOVE HAS ROLE OF DUCHESS IN "YOUNG APRIL"

Bessie Love, who is featured opposite Joseph Schildkraut in "Young April," which will be the big feature at the Fischer's Appleton theatre next Friday and Saturday, in conjunction with the weekend vaudeville program, has been a very busy artist during the past twelve months.

She has played with Adolph Menjou in "The King of Main Street," under William De Mille's direction, in "New Brooms," opposite Tom Moore, in "The Song and Dance Man," and most recently in the feminine lead of "Lovey Mary," King Baggett's latest directorial effort.

Her role in "Young April" as the vivacious little Princess is said to be ideally suited to the winsome Bessie's exuberant personality. Unlike many screen players whose personalities off the screen and on the entirely different, Miss Love's "bubbling over" disposition—her true self—registers to surprising advantage in the films.

"Young April" was adapted for the screen by Douglas Doty and Jeanie Macpherson from Egerton Castle's famous novel of the same name. Featured in support of Miss Love are Joseph Schildkraut and Rudolph Schildkraut. Others in the cast include Bryant Washburn, Dot Farley and Alan Brooks.

EXTENSION TO OFFER COURSE IN COMBUSTION

Arrangements have been completed with Professor Elliott of the engineering department of the University, of Wisconsin to offer a special course here in fuels and combustion, E. M. Gorrow, field representative of the University Extension division, Appleton district, has announced.

The course will be conducted at evening classes, one meeting to be held each week, according to Mr. Gorrow. The first class probably will be held on Jan. 6, and the course will last eight weeks.

Professor Elliott, an authority on the subject, will through the use of blackboard demonstrations, motion pictures and slides make the course interesting to all who enroll in it, according to Mr. Gorrow. A fee of $10 will be charged each student.

TRIALS POSTPONED WHEN LAWYERS AREN'T READY

Nine jury cases scheduled for trial before Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner were indefinitely postponed Monday when it was found that none of the trial lawyers was ready to bring his case before the court. The cases represent several matters which were set for hearing at the regular fall term of court, it was pointed out.

JOESTING, OOSTERBAAN LEAD BIG TEN CHOICES

Chicago—(P)—The Western Conference has eight strong candidates for all-American football honors, two of them being the unanimous choice of Big Ten coaches for their positions on the all conference team selected for the Associated Press.

Bennie Oosterbaan, Michigan, end, who has been chosen captain for 1927, and Herb Joesting, Minnesota, fullback and the greatest point scorer in the Big Ten this year, have the endorsement of all the Big Ten coaches as the best in their field. Bennie Friedman, and Moon Baker, captains of Michigan and Northwestern were almost equally favored for the first all-conference backfield, which is rounded out by Marty Karow, Ohio State captain.

The other four Big Ten stars picked by most of the coaches were Reduch, Illinois, center; Nelson, Iowa, tackle; Shively, Illinois, guard; and Hess, Ohio guard, who was on many all-American eleven last fall.

Johnson, Northwestern tackle, named on several newspaper all-conference teams, was only one vote behind the first and second selections of the coaches in the closest decision of the squad.

There were 45 players selected by the coaches as worthy of all conference rating, with Michigan and Minnesota leading in numbers by placing eight men each.

Dempsey Lost 10 Pounds Waiting For Tunney

BY JOE WILLIAMS

New York—It has been a matter of public knowledge for more than two months now that when Mr. Jack Dempsey faced Mr. Gene Tunney in the Battle of the Sea, he lost ten pounds, one after the other, by margin varying from the size of your hat to the dimensions of the state of Texas.

One of the reasons why he did not lose more than the heavyweight championship was that the contest, as it was illegitimately billed, was restricted to ten rounds and that nothing more than his championship was involved.

It does not seem to be so common, known, however, that Mr. Jack Dempsey also lost ten pounds of very usable and important flesh, likewise one after the other, in the three-day interim preceding what was to have been his majestic return to active belligerence.

The fact, as I understand them, are these: Dempsey, out training on Monday at the work of the fight, at 4 o'clock that afternoon he shook his supposedly iron legs out of two soggy leather mittens and handed them to Martin Burke, one of his sparring partners. "Here are my training gloves, Martin, maybe you'd like to keep them," he said, with a noble sentimental gesture.

Then he bounded down from the white pine platform which had served as a starting ramp at the Atlantic City dog track and raced to his dressing room under the grandstand. Once there he stopped and stepped on a small floor scale. It registered 156 pounds.

"F. C.," smiled Dempsey. "That's just what I wanted to weigh when I finished training. I'll probably drop a pound during light road work in the meantime and come in the ring at 155 my normal fighting weight."

That was the last the news hounds saw of the champion until Thursday at noon the day of the fight when he weighed in at his home in the presence of the Pennsylvania boxing commissioners. His weight at that hour was 136 pounds. Thus, from Monday at 5 o'clock when he ended training until Thursday at 1 o'clock, when he weighed in officially, he lost ten pounds.

Obviously any fighter who loses ten pounds in three days' time DOING NOTHING can't be right.

Why did Dempsey lose weight like that? The answer is that he had a complete collapse of nerves. He "broke" under pressure. The old iron left him.

Was it the result of the continuous harassment caused by Kearns's legal tortures or a growing conviction that he was about to meet a superior ring foe?

Dempsey was asked to answer that and he replied: "You may believe it or not, but I didn't figure Tunney had a chance with me from the start. I never gave him a tumble. I don't know why I faded, but worry over Tunney and what he might do to me was certainly not the cause."

You can take that one or leave it. It may be 100 per cent truth or it may be just as much resurfaced hokum. Whatever it is, the ballyhoo barons will make the most of it if Mr. Tex Rickard carries out his threat to reassemble the principal characters for an encore next summer.

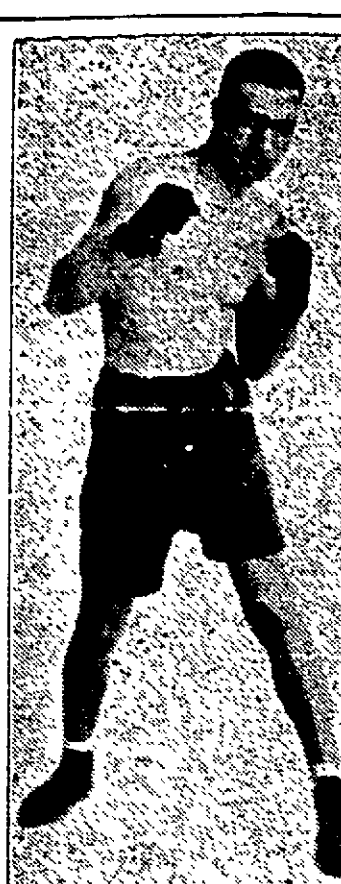

At any rate Dempsey wasn't right when he faced Tunney. He wasn't right because he had lost ten pounds in three days. There is at present a reasonable doubt as to why he lost them; but there will be no doubt at all when the ballyhoo barons get through with the prospective customers.

Don't be dumb!

It was that egg Kearns who caused the great champion to collapse.

And all the customers like that? They'll LOVE it.

ON OSHKOSH CARD

JOHNNY NICHOLS

Chicago batter, who meets Al Van Ryan, St. Paul flash, as the windup of 24 rounds of fast scrapping at Oshkosh Thursday evening. The show is the first indoor card of the season for the American Legion. Two Appleton boys, Art Poggins and Mickey Mack are on the card.

Campus Rebels

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
JUDITH MARTIN, English teacher at Pendleton University, sides with ERIC WATERS in his rebellion against DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN.

DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, admires htr and disappears of Eric.

MYRA ALDRICH is in love with Eric and torn between affection for Judith and jealousy.

Eric is suspected of complicity with "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, in selling poison liquor from which two students have died. Judith publicly defends him.

Judith befriends Mrs. Timothy Brown and keeps the secret of Mrs. Brown's love affair, discovered in a week-end trip to the city.

"KITTY" Shea tries to blackmail Mrs. Brown and threatens to expose the fact that Judith and Eric dined at the Blue Moon roadhouse, the night it was raided.

Judith appeals to Eric for help. Dr. Dorn, having seen Eric climb down the trellis from Judith's room, and not knowing that he had merely ascended to ask her to unlock the door for Myra, is now avoiding Judith.

Myra asks Judith to stay in her sorority house to supervise the servants during Christmas holidays.

The professor comes to the house to see Judith, but Myra captures him at the door.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXVI

Myra danced into the parlor, beckoning to the professor. But he fell back for a moment to speak to Judith.

"I'll come back again, to see you," he said, shamefacedly.

Judith turned away toward the stairs. When the door slammed a few minutes later, she could see, from her position by the desk, that Myra was clinging to his arm and chattering gaily, as they walked up the street.

"No mistletoe," said the man at the flower store next door to the College Inn. "No market for it now."

Myra was chattering to him, and mugging generation want with mistletoe? Don't need any excuse to kiss. Plenty of fine holly wreaths, though. Couple of poinsettia plants too."

"I don't want the holly," said Judith. But she stopped to finger the velvet red flowers of the poinsettia. At last she drew a bill from her purse.

"Please send this one to Mrs. Timothy Brown, 811 Avon place," she said to the clerk. He handed her a blank card and a pen.

"Better write 'Congratulations' on that card," said Eric Waters, stepping up behind her.

Judith turned in surprise. Eric was carrying a traveling bag. "Just making the train for home, Judith," he said. "I've been trying to call you all day. Let's get out of here, and I'll explain."

Judith handed the card to the florist and left the store with Eric.

"I've seen Shea," said he. "We had a heart-to-heart talk. I think you needn't worry about him any more. That's why I said you might congratulate Mrs. Brown."

Judith looked at him inquiringly, but he shook his head. "Don't worry about the how of it," he said. "Just forget the whole affair, and have as merry a Christmas as you can. It's rotten that you are to be in this dead hole alone."

Judith smiled and Eric said no more. When they reached the corner leading to the railroad station, he held out his hand. "Goodbye, Judith. And please take care of yourself. I don't like to leave you here. And I think you should see that the Gamma Delta house is thoroughly locked up, every night."

He held her hand tightly for a moment, and abruptly walked away.

The walk home was not reassuring. The Christmas exodus was well under way. Judith passed many groups on the sidewalks, bound station-ward, and the street was full of hurrying taxis and baggage trucks.

When she reached her boarding house, Myra's large wardrobe trunk was just descending the stairs, on the shoulders of two puffing men.

Myra called to her as she climbed the steps. She was standing in the door of Judith's room, wearing the new fud coat and a little green hat, and hugging a monstrous basket of fruit.

This she held out to Judith with a sigh of relief. "Merry Christmas, Jude. And all I ask of you is, please remember to tell me what's in the little silver foil wrappers scattered among the fruit. I've always wanted to know."

"Take one and see," laughed Judith. But Myra shook her head.

There was an ominous crash from below stairs, and Myra ran to the railing. "Don't jim that trunk," she called. Then, turning to Judith, "I'm going to dump everything out of it, and bring it back filled with new clothes. Mother's still in the West Indies, and Dad is so much wax in my hands."

She gave Judith a fly-away kiss and ran downstairs.

Shortly afterward, a taxi, with Judith in it, whirled into Providence road. The Gamma Delta house was a great white Colonial structure, solidly ensconced in its square lawn, with the college golf links stretching away to the east and a wooded pasture that belonged to one of the old estates of the town as its western outlook.

The two-story portico, with its four great pillars, enclosed a wide and hospitable door. There were lights in many of the windows.

The servant who answered Judith's knock was a handsome young mulatto, with flashing eyes and a crisp little mustache. He surveyed her inquiringly as he led her over polished floors to the winding stairway. Judith caught glimpses of rich paneling and heavy furniture, through the wide arches that opened into other rooms. "All the young ladies is gone, miss," said the man.

In the upstairs hall, she found every door but one standing open. In the bedroom, disorder ran riot, with clothing and wrappings material scattered about on the floors.

A negro maid came running up the stairs. "This room, miss," she said, opening the one closed door. The room beyond had been set to rights. One wall was composed of six windows in a row, which looked out just over the front door. Outside, the four pillars swept up past the windows to the roof.

Judith set her bags down and looked around. There were a small fireplace and some built-in book shelves in one wall. Opposite them was the maid dressing table, on which was enthroned a long, limp doll with red wool hair and grotesque limbs twisted in knots.

The maid was watching Judith with more than casual interest. "We didn't know you was comin' tonight," she said. "Thought you'd be here in the mornin'." She went out, closing the door sharply.

Judith prepared for dinner. She ate it in solitary state, at one of the great dining tables, with the mulatto hovering about, in evident haste to finish serving her.

"Do you all live in the house?" asked Judith.

"No'm, just me and cook—she's my sister. Anybody goes home nights—she's de maid." He shot a cuff back to consult an ornate wrist watch. Judith swallowed her dessert hastily.

As she rose, she shivered slightly. The man noticed it. "Yass-m. I'll put some coal on de fire. Let it get kinda low. Been huntin' all afternoon. Brought back twelve cotton-tails and a 'possum." His face widened in a grin.

Judith ran upstairs for her hat and coat. When she came back, the mulatto was not to be seen. She went through the passage that evidently led to the kitchen.

She opened the kitchen door and stopped. The room was full of negroes seated on the chairs and tables and on the floor. A general expression of gloom was visible on their faces.

At Judith's entrance, several rose awkwardly. She saw the mulatto looking at her defiantly, and noticed that he held a shot gun in his hand. On the floor at his feet lay the bodies of the 'possum and the rabbits.

Judith turned to the young maid. "I am going to the movies," she said. "Please lock the house carefully tonight and leave lights burning, if you go to bed before I return."

The girl nodded. Smiles broke out on the faces of several of the negroes, and the houseman bent over his rabbits again.

In the lobby of the theatre, Judith met Dean Angela Snow, who hailed her with delight. "Come sit with me," she cried, "and I'll take you home in the coupe afterwards." Judith gladly assented.

The picture was an amusing one, and they came out of the theater laughing. "It's good to have someone to talk to," said Judith. "Pendleton during the Christmas vacation isn't a very cheerful place."

"No indeed," agreed Miss Snow. They got into the cozy little coupe and headed homewards. The engine was choking and sputtering.

"The only time when I wish I had a man of my own," said Dean Snow, "is when this car is misbehaving. It has stopped on me twice today and both times I had to send for a man to get it started."

Judith laughed. "But you can dismiss a garage man when you don't need him, and you couldn't dismiss a husband."

They turned into Providence Pike and the dean was putting her foot on the gas for the final rise that led to the Gamma Delta house, when the engine whined to a standstill.

"How tiresome," said Dean Snow. "What shall we do now?"

The headlights of an approaching car offered a possible solution. The driver stopped beside them. "If you have a rope, I'll tow you," he said.

Dean Snow nodded. "I have a rope. It's an old maid's only resource in auto troubles."

Judith had been looking up the road. "I'll just run along," she said. "There's a moon, and it's only a few steps from here."

The dean looked up at the sky anxiously. "Aren't you afraid?" Judith laughed. "Of course not. I'm still early. I would have gone home alone if I hadn't met you, anyway."

She set off up the road. She could still hear the voice of the dean and the man at the foot of the hill.

In a few moments the Gamma Delta house was in sight and Judith stopped. Every window was dark.

(To Be Continued)

Alone in the sorority house, Judith has to defend herself against the drunken "KITTY" Shea in the next chapter.

SENSIBLE DRIVING LIGHTENS LOAD ON CAR DURING WINTER

Driver Should Help Lighten Heavy Strain on Auto in Cold Months

BY ISRAEL KLEIN

Winter imposes a heavy strain on the automobile, which can be greatly lightened by sensible driving.

There are many accessories to the modern machine to relieve motorists of the dread of cold weather. But with all these, a car can be driven to the junk heap just as fast as ever if the driver doesn't consider the whims and caprices of winter.

Hot spot manifolds and other pre-heating arrangements, winter fronts, blankets and alcohol may help fight the cold, but when the car is left in a freezing garage over night, the care of the cautious motorist is needed.

The oil has become thick and sluggish, the water cooling system might have frozen, yet a good motorist can start that car and get it going without a bit of trouble.

What should be done in a case like this amounts to putting as little strain on the engine as possible. It should be started with the spark retarded and the gas administered in a slow, steady stream.

TAKE YOUR TIME

Slow heating of the engine is essential. If the cooling system happens to be frozen, racing the engine will merely overheat it while the water remains frozen. The result, from the difference in temperature, will be a cracked cylinder case and leaking radiator.

Time and patience are required. With the garage door open, just sit at the throttle and let the engine run slowly and quietly, spark retarded, for about five minutes.

By that time the engine will have heated slowly to the proper driving temperature, the water will have warmed up evenly, and there should be no trouble in later driving.

However cold it might be outside, the radiator must have some air to cool the hot water going through it. Keeping the winter shutter tightly closed, or the radiator entirely covered, is dangerous. That, too, causes steaming, yet many a motorist forgets this little attention.

LITTLE PRIMING NEEDED

It should be remembered that an engine performs its best when it is

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

It requires heating up before starting to pull the car, but it will not heat up properly by being raced to save time.

Over-priming is another fault of motorists to get the engine started in cold weather. What that does is fill the cylinders with so much fuel that they become choked.

It's a waste of gas and it doesn't help the motor any.

Occasional priming, resting the motor at times in the cranking process and keeping the spark retarded will help. While the engine is still putting in fits and starts, the priming may be continued. But as soon as the motor is running smoothly, priming should be stopped.

Many Rural Schools Serving Hot Lunches

Many of the rural schools of the county are already serving hot lunches to the pupils at noon although no official cognizance has been given the program as yet for the 1926-27 school year. It was reported by County Superintendent A. G. Meating on Monday. The county school heads approve of the idea but much of the actual arranging of the serving of hot food is left to the discretion of the teachers and the demands of the district.

NEENAH MAN PATENTS CLOTHES LINE HOLDER

A. Luckenbach of the Sanitary Appliance company of Neenah recently received a patent on a clothes line article made of the combination of metals and can be hung on a nail or a hook or fastened to a corner of a house or on a post. To tighten a line when this patented holder is used, it is only necessary to pull the rope through the fastener.

Mr. Luckenbach also has invented a clothes line reel for winding up the line after it has been used. It is similar to the old fashioned reel used by boys to wind string when pulling in a kite. It is made with a brake so that the speed can be controlled in unwinding. A guide prevents knots or wrinkles of the rope in winding and also rolls the rope neatly on the spindle. Mr. Luckenbach plans to manufacture these articles and place them on the market.

BIG SEWER PROJECT ON KERNAN-AVE COMPLETED

The largest sewer project to be undertaken in this city for some time was completed last week on Kernan-ave when the last foot of sewer was laid on that street. Approximately 42,033 feet were laid there. Work on the project was started Oct. 16.

The Rankin-st sewer, started about a month ago, will require about two more weeks for completion, it is estimated. The Commercial-st sewer was finished last week.

Florida's unchangeable asset

A glorious—balmy—health-giving climate is Florida's eternal heritage from beneficent Nature

FLORIDA is an enchanting land—blessed with this incomparable climate—with endless miles of shining beaches—thousands of sparkling lakes, rivers, streams—clad in tropical verdure—bathed all year in glorious sunshine—caressed by balmy breezes from the seas that wash its shores.

Great hotels—palatial and luxurious for the wealthy, comfortable and attractive for those of simpler habits. Bungalows, cottages, boarding houses—accommodation for every taste and purse.

Thriving, bustling cities—busy marts of modern commerce. Peaceful towns and villages—happy communities, reaping the golden harvest of their labors from the fertile soil.

Great undertakings—harbors, docks, warehouses, schools, churches, homes—an enterprising, earnest people building solidly for present needs and preparing for the future.

Over 6,000 miles of railroads penetrate to every corner of this smiling land—9.27 miles to every hundred square miles compared with 8.24 miles for all other states.

Over fifty million dollars is being spent by railroads in 1926 building new mileage, new equipment.

4500 miles of hard road—7700 miles of semi-hard—carry the products of farm and factory to the nearest market.

Florida's story of achievement is endless as she stands today upon the threshold of her inevitable destiny—a great agricultural state, an industrial state of great importance—and the playground of America.

Victors Win Close 6 to 4 Game in Late Minutes of Game

Special to Post-Crescent.
Clintonville—The high school basketball team defeated Marion high school at Marion Friday night 6 to 4. Marion led by a score of 4-2 at the half, and as the game progressed it looked as though the score would remain at it was. In the last quarter Clintonville snatched the victory when the score stood 5-4. A field goal to break the score. Strong defensive work on the part of Clintonville prevented the Marion five from piling up larger score.

HEAVY BLIZZARDS BLOCK HIGHWAYS

Many Sideroads Near Fremont Were Closed by Snow Last Friday

Special to Post-Crescent.
Fremont—The severe snowstorm last Friday, followed by heavy winds, made travel on highways 48 and 95 difficult and on side roads impossible. The Oshkosh-Stevens Point busses gave irregular service, and the Appleton-Waupaca bus made no trips through Fremont until Sunday. Most trains were on time and rural mail carriers made their regular deliveries, Friday and Saturday. Snow was removed at several places on highway 13, by patrolmen using graders. A short stretch of road was drifted very deep with snow, and has always been a barrier to traffic in the winter. A snow fence was needed there. The first storm of the season has shown the necessity of snow-plows if motor traffic is to continue at all in Waupaca this winter. There is much agitation toward keeping the roads open but the county board has taken no action regarding snow removal.

School began again Monday at the Fremont grade school and junior high school after closing for Thanksgiving.

Miss Sylvia Sader who spent four days at her home here last week, returned Sunday to Oshkosh where she attends normal school.

Mr. Hoeke, Miss Beatrice Smith and Miss Gertrude Kohler were guests of Mrs. H. F. Redemann, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schwartz entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Drevs and Mrs. Herman Zuehlke at a card party, Sunday evening.

Relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. William Redemann surprised them at their home last Saturday evening. There was music, dancing and refreshments.

The St. Paul's Lutheran Ladies Aid society will hold its regular monthly meeting at the parochial school building, Wednesday afternoon. The hostesses are Mrs. Amelia Marquardt, Mrs. Walter Marquardt, and Mrs. William Peters.

The Union Ladies aid will meet with Mrs. George H. Dobbins, this Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Libman, recently of Fremont, have established themselves in a large meat market and grocery store in Chicago.

Miss Freda Zuehlke, high school teacher at Aniwa, spent Thanksgiving at her home.

The Rev. E. A. Schmidt went to Milwaukee, Friday. His wife and daughter who spent Thanksgiving with her parents, returned with him.

Mrs. O. H. Kuohi is visiting her mother, Mrs. Mary Koubbs, at Oshkosh.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Langfurth spent Thanksgiving with Omro relatives.

Miss Jermaine Behnke who has been visiting Miss Dorothy Levejoy returned to her home in Stevens Point, Monday.

SEVEN-COACH TRAIN IS CROWDED BY HUNTERS

Special to Post-Crescent

Waupaca—The Soo Line passenger train which is due at Oshkosh at 10:49 in the evening was so crowded Sunday night with deer hunters, that all passengers were refused at the Oshkosh station even though there were seven coaches. Mrs. A. F. Kirsling, who was anxious to return to Waupaca, got on the train in spite of orders to stay off, but had to stand all the way to Waupaca.

Mrs. A. P. Hannon will entertain at 6 o'clock dinners Tuesday and Thursday followed by bridge at her home on S. Main-st.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Voldauch and three children of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Voldauch's father, Mr. Shulfer of Mill Creek, returned to their home Sunday after spending the Thanksgiving vacation with relatives in Weyauvega.

They were accompanied from Waupaca by A. F. Kirsling who came up with them and spent the Thanksgiving vacation with his family on Waupaca-st.

Miss Margaret Anderson, who is teaching in Milwaukee, spent the Thanksgiving vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Anderson.

Miss Fern Porter, grade school teacher, spent the Thanksgiving vacation at her home in Stevens Point.

Miss Elizabeth Collins, high school teacher, spent Thanksgiving at her home in Stevens Point.

Harold Anderson of Stevens Point, spent Thanksgiving at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Anderson, N. Main-st.

"HAM AN" RULES

Chicago—"Ham an" is still the great American dish. Reports taken from hotels, dining cars and restaurants show that this savory, typical American dish is still the favorite breakfast.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia" Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, and drug stores. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875. adv.

CORN GROWERS EXPECT BIGGER CORN CROPS FROM NEW SEED

PLANTS ARE INBRED, THEN CROSSED, TO GET GREATER YIELD

Plant Will Be More Resistant to Attacks of the Corn Borer Pest

BY ISRAEL KLEIN

A new day is dawning for the corn grower.

Corn borers will have no dread for him, heavy destructive storms will cause no alarm.

His friend, the scientific plant breeder and experimenter, has come to his rescue. He is perfecting strains of corn that will yield from 20 to 30 per cent more than the best variety of corn grown today.

Better even than the promise of an increased yield is that of a plant more resistant to the attacks of the corn borer, sturdier against wind and flood, than the plant of today.

It may be five, or a dozen years before every farmer will be able to take advantage of this new bumper corn, but the day is assured.

PRODUCING MORE SEED

A new seed is being developed by this process, one developed by a combination of head work and hand work extending over the country for several years. The head work almost done, federal and state scientists have combined to synthesize the new seed corn for the future.

More than 150,000 plants were hand pollinated by this principle this season in connection with corn improvement.

This improvement consists of developing self-fertilized inbred lines which later may be used in crosses. Dozens of corn investigators have shown that seed obtained from such crosses will outyield the parent variety.

Selfed, or inbred lines are developed by bagging the corn plant and transferring the pollen to the ear shoot of the same plant. When self-fertilized by hand methods for several generations a pure line of uniform characteristics is the result.

This inbred variety may have lost much vigor in the process, but when recombined in suitable crosses all its latent ability manifests itself in greater and stronger yield.

STILL SEEKING BEST

Many investigators are busy developing hundreds of selfed lines to test in combination with other selfed lines and to locate the ones that will give the maximum yield when crossed.

The difficulty encountered by the investigators is a considerable reduction in the yield of selfed lines. They therefore have decided to cross these lines from year to year in order to maintain a high rate of production.

No satisfactory system has yet been devised for supplying the farmers with this high yielding seed. But it has been suggested that community seed farms be maintained where the selfed lines developed especially for each locality would be grown and crossed under the direction of competent managers.

With the inauguration of such community seed farms, farmers selected seed corn would pass into the discard.

LOAN EXPERT

A. C. WILLIAMS

EXPERT TELLS HOW FARMERS ACQUIRE U. S. BANK STOCK

Borrowers Obtain Control of 12 Federal Land Banks Since Start in 1916

BY A. C. WILLIAMS

Federal Farm Loan Commissioner

Recent announcement that the farmer-borrowers in the Sixth Federal Land Bank district has acquired, through their National Farm Loan associations, all of the stock of the Federal Land bank of St. Louis, focuses attention upon the fact that the farmer-borrowers now own the stock of the 12 federal land banks.

The total stock owned by the government in the other four banks on Aug. 31, 1926, was only $1,058,855. These twelve banks have loaned, through almost 5000 National Farm Loan associations, more than $1,256,000,000 to 404,401 farmers.

We hear a great deal about co-operation. It is stated frequently that wider application of this principle will help solve many of the problems of agriculture. Proof of this is found in the success of the federal land banks, which are the outgrowth of more than a century of co-operative experience in Europe.

HOW STOCK IS BOUGHT

The federal land banks were organized in the summer of 1916. Each one was capitalized at $750,000. Of the total initial capital of $9,000,000 for

Little Advance In Farm Marketing Laws In 1926

Chicago—(AP)—The saturation point in agricultural cooperative marketing legislation was reached by 1925 and the year was not characterized by either marked advance or retrenchment in the enactment of farm marketing laws by state governments. Alvin C. Reis, of Madison, chairman of the committee on legislation for the National Association of Marketing Officials, reported Monday at the organization's annual convention.

Outstanding developments of the year in the field of federal legislation the 12 banks, the government subscribed $5,892,130.

Borrowers become members of a local National Farm association, in which they purchase stock in an amount equal to 5 per cent of their loan. In turn, the association acquires an equal amount of stock in the federal land bank of the district.

The farmer-borrowers have in this way acquired all of the stock held by the government in eight of the twelve federal land banks, and all but $1,058,855 of this stock of the other four.

Capital stock owned by the farmers in the 12 banks now totals about $55,000,000, with reserves, surplus and undivided profits of more than $12,000,000. Net earnings from the establishment of the banks to date total more than $49,000,000, of which about $18,000,000 has been distributed as dividends, thereby reducing the interest charge to the farmer-borrowers.

KIND OF LOANS

Applications for loans are checked by officers of the local National Farm Loan associations, which guarantee payment thereof and by officers of the federal land banks. The farm is appraised by a federal appraiser, appointed by the Farm Loan board.

These banks can make loans only to those now engaged, or soon to become engaged in the operation of the farm offered as security, and in an amount not to exceed 50 per cent of the appraised value of the land for agricultural purposes, and 20 per cent of the insurable improvements.

Funds obtained from the banks must be used for certain approved purposes, and loans may in no case exceed $25,000 to one borrower.

Loanable funds are obtained from the sale of farm loan bonds, which are issued and sold under the supervision of the Farm Loan Board. These bonds are secured by first mortgage plans made in accordance with the plan outlined, checked and approved by the securities division of the Farm Loan bureau, and pledged with a federal registrar, appointed and supervised by the Farm Loan board.

Each federal land bank is managed by seven directors, three of whom are chosen by the borrowers, and four named by the Farm Loan board. Three of the latter represent the public interest, and one is selected from a group recommended by the borrowers.

were said to be passage of the bill creating a division of cooperative marketing in the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, and defeat of the McNary-Haugen bill and similar measures designed to create an export corporation for farm surplus.

No state legislation of conspicuous note was passed in 1926 nor proposed and defeated.

"Cooperative marketing legislation by 1925 had reached its saturation point," Mr. Reis said. "Most states had adopted laws permitting the standardization of farm products in more or less degree. A few states were and still are experimenting with laws licensing commission merchants."

"For 1927 the committee recommends a campaign for more thoroughgoing and comprehensive laws in the several states in reference to standardization and inspection of food products and farm products, and the amendment, where advisable, of the so-called standard cooperative marketing act in accordance with the recommendation made by the committee on legislation in 1925."

The committee also recommended the establishment of a national clearinghouse to render expert assistance to state departments and agencies in the drafting of marketing laws and to act as a distribution center for legislative information dealing with farm marketing problems.

ONLY 8 COUNTIES HAVE NOT STARTED TUBERCULIN DRIVE

Twelve Wisconsin Counties Are Now on Waiting Lists for Cattle Test

Milwaukee—(AP)—Only eight counties out of seventy-one in the state of Wisconsin remain outside the scope of the drive on bovine tuberculosis which is making steady progress, under the direction of Commissioner John G. Jones Jr., of the agricultural department.

Ten of the seventy-one counties soon will be modified accredited, Mr. Jones announced, which means that they are rated as having less than two-tenths of 1 per cent infection. Thirty-one counties have been inspected once or more, Mr. Jones said.

Testing has been completed in Winnebago, Adams, Brown, Waukesha and Ozaukee counties and is near completion in Fond du Lac and Sauk counties.

Twelve counties waiting

Testing has started or soon will be under way in Jefferson, Dane, Kenosha, Richland, Walworth, Washington, Milwaukee and Racine counties. Twelve counties are on the waiting list and will be tackled in the following order: Portage, Pepin, Columbia, Kewaunee, Sheboygan, Marquette, Wausau, Dodge, Langlade, Marinette, Grant and Vernon.

The eight counties which have not applied for the test which is designed to eliminate all tubercular cattle from the state are Oconto, LaFayette, Iowa, Green, Manitowish, Crawford, Calumet and Calumet.

The cow census show they contain approximately 180,440 head while the whole state has 2,800,000 head.

RAT IS WORST PEST

The rat is said to be the most destructive animal pest in the world. Losses from its depredations are estimated to be more than those from all other injurious mammals combined.

NAME LIVESTOCK CHAMPS AT CATTLE SHOW IN CHICAGO

Thousands of Persons Daily Mill Through International Amphitheatre

Chicago—Thousands of persons are daily visiting the International Livestock show, which is being held here this week and the total attendance promises to exceed all records.

Aside from the judging in the various livestock and hay and grain classes Monday, the healthiest boy and girl was being chosen from 17 state winners in the male group and 15 girl state champions.

The grand champion steer also was in process of selection Monday, for the animal a rather empty honor, for it means his death. For more than a score of years the finest steer shown has been sold at auction and immediately cut up for beef. Last year's winner brought $3 a pound.

The following championships were awarded Monday:

Junior livestock feeding contest, cattle department, Ray Greathouse of Hinsdale, Ill., first, with a Hereford.

State group of the feeding contest: Illinois, first; Iowa, second, and Indiana third.

Lambs: Robert L. Nash, Tiffin, Ind., first; Walter Templeton, Evansville, Wis., second.

Barrows: Gerald Hitchings, McCosburg, Ind., first; Bernard Brown, Brook, Ind., second.

Junior yearling class Aberdeen steers, Broadus Blackus, owned by A. A. Armstrong and son of Camargo, Ill.

In the aged shorthorn class for bulls, the King of the Fairies, which first sprang into fame as a prize-winner for the Canadian ranch owned by the Prince of Wales, was defeated. First honors went to Oakdale Stanmore, owned by Vickor and Sons of Granger, Mo.

The Department of Agriculture has sent out a warning that heavy losses may be sustained by corn growers this year unless damaged corn is culled from market shipments. The corn crop, especially in many sections of Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio contains a large proportion of damaged ears.

POULTRY, PIGEON SHOW OPENS DEC. 2

William H. Laabs, Waupaca, One of Judges at Milwaukee Exhibition

Milwaukee—(AP)—The aristocracy of poultry and pigeons will be judged by a group of experts from various parts of the United States, when the Auditorium Poultry and Pigeon show gets under way here Dec. 2 to 5. The show will be under the auspices of the Milwaukee Pigeon Fanciers' association and the Milwaukee-co Feathered Stock Association, Inc.

The list of judges, as announced on Saturday by Albert T. Keipper, executive secretary, includes: William A. Halbach, Waterford; Edward H. Hoffman, La Crosse; William H. Laabs, Waupaca; Henry Schwab, Rochester, N. Y.; George M. Wells, Oshkosh; Frank A. Radford, Oshkosh; James W. Greenwood, Milwaukee; Arnold P. Becker, Chicago; Edgar O. Ball, Highland Park, Ill.; J. Korb, Louisville, Ky.; Herman Vanelow, South Milwaukee; Robert Loco, Chicago; Fred Phillips, Chicago; and Thomas Marsh, Milwaukee.

Among the notable poultry to be entered is the Ancona hen owned by Frank Stier, Cleveland, O. Mr. Stier refused $1,000 for this hen several times and would not part with it for five times this amount, it is said. The Ancona hen will be shown in a special display cage.

The pigeon department will be represented by every known color and variety. More than 2,000 pigeons have been entered to date. The display of parrots is almost complete; one more shipment of rare tropical birds is due to arrive in Milwaukee Monday from Central America.

The homer department will be an exceptional attraction, of which a division will be given over to famous race-winning birds. Conspicuous among these will be a homer owned by Miss Elizabeth Leichsner of Milwaukee. This bird won the national 300-mile championship race.

General arrangements for the show are in charge of Albert T. Keipper, 63 Second-st. Mr. Keipper estimates the total number of entries as more than 5,000.
